

Economy Bloc Drafting Plan For Balancing Federal Budget

Southern Group Will Submit Proposals To Roosevelt

WOULD CUT COSTS

Want Reductions In Expenditures 'All Down The Line'

Washington—(AP)—Arrangements have been completed for President Roosevelt to deliver his message to congress Monday at 12:30 p. m. (C. S. T.) before a joint session of the two houses. It will be broadcast.

Washington—(AP)—An economy bloc composed of 10 southern Democratic representatives, it was learned today, is drafting a detailed budget-balancing program for submission to President Roosevelt.

One member, who declined to be quoted by name, said the legislators had banded together to seek cuts in federal expenditures "all down the line" and especially in agencies created during the last few years.

He said each member would report to the group on a specific appropriation before the president's annual budget message is presented to congress next week.

The bloc is considering demanding drastic cuts in the works programs, administration, the public works administration and federal highway aid.

Would Drop WPA
Members recently discussed the possibility of asking that WPA be discontinued entirely and that an annual appropriation of about $500,000,000 be substituted for outright purchase of food and clothing for needy.

The relief appropriation for this year was $1,500,000,000. Whether the 1938-39 budget can be balanced is a question which has brought varying answers among federal officials.

President Roosevelt has said he hopes to balance it, but advocates of increased relief spending predict a deficit.

The budget submitted next week probably will omit relief estimates, but it is expected that the needs can be better met by other means.

Mr. Roosevelt also has said he may make supplemental requests for more naval construction.

Taylor's Forecast
Chairman Taylor (D-Colo.) of the house appropriations committee predicted today the budget would come "reasonably close" to a balance despite possible increased expenditures for national defense.

He declared, however, this achievement might be rendered impossible by "selfish blocs" such as have organized to fight Mr. Roosevelt's proposed $24,000,000 reduction in highway funds and a $123,000,000 cut for the civilian conservation corps.

Taylor served notice he would urge all appropriations subcommittees to cut every supply bill "below the budget committee."

From other sources, it was learned the bill carrying funds for more than 30 independent governmental agencies, including the interstate commerce commission, social security board, civilian conservation corps, veterans administration and the Tennessee valley authority, already has been slashed $24,000,000 below the figure recommended by the budget bureau.

The bill is expected to carry a record amount, nevertheless, because the CCC and TVA were included in its scope for the first time.

Gas, Oil Stolen at New London Station

New London—(AP)—An undetermined amount of gasoline and oil was stolen at the Wadham Bulk Oil station at New London last night and police today were investigating the theft. Evidence showed two persons were involved in the burglary, police said.

The office of the bulk station was entered by breaking a window and the combination to the safe was damaged but the safe was unopened. At least one case of canned oil was taken from the office and the gasoline loading pipes were drained. Officials said it would be impossible to determine the exact amount until inventory was taken.

The warehouse was also entered. The burglary was discovered at 7 o'clock this morning when an employee, Carl Pribbenow, came to work.

Recipe for Results
The "Rx" used on physicians' prescription forms is simply an abbreviation of "recipe," which comes from the Latin word for "take." Therefore, we might be justified in saying: "Rx for cash in the pocket—one well-worded Want Ad offering used articles for sale, and in the Want Ad—The Post-Crescent. Here's an example of how this prescription usually works:

McNary Sees Effort to Find 'Alibi' in Recent New Deal Attacks Upon 'Big Business'

RETAINED BY FORD

Four Men Fined After Attack on CIO Organizer

Defendants in Kansas City Case Say They are Ford Workers

Kansas City—(AP)—Four men who testified they were Ford Motor company workers were fined $100 each today by Police Judge Thomas V. Holland after hearing testimony of a CIO organizer that he had been slugged and his wife slapped.

The organizer, O. W. Penney, 40, said he helped found the United Automobile Workers local which called a strike Dec. 10 against the Ford assembly plant here and "I am a Ford worker on strike."

Ford officials deny that any strike is in effect at the plant. Denials of slugging Penney or slapping his wife were made by the four men, Ben Baum, 22, Joseph Shera, 23, Alex Bengimina, 31, and H. Rauzi, 35.

Rauzi, who said he was a foreman at the Ford plant, displayed a permit to carry a gun after Police Detective Harry Reiter testified he found two loaded pistols and some baseball bats in a motor car in which the four were arrested. Rauzi said he was armed because there had been trouble on the route of Ford workers to and from the plant.

Mrs. Penney pointed to Bengimina when asked to identify the man she claims slapped her. Bengimina said "I never saw the woman before."

Penney was unable to identify any of the men.

Egyptian Ruler Is Facing Crisis

King Farouk Dismisses Premier and Appoints Successor

Cairo—(AP)—Egypt was plunged today into the greatest political crisis of young King Farouk's 20-month reign when he dismissed Premier Mustapha Nahas Pasha and appointed Mohamed Mahmoud to form a new government.

Mahmoud, 55 years old, Oxford educated, premier in 1928 and 1929, immediately started drafting a new cabinet, then decided to dissolve parliament and hold elections within two months.

The long feud between the palace and the government of the Wafdist (nationalist) premier already had resulted in a strike of 10,000 government railway workers in Cairo. Police were on the alert to forestall threatened disorders.

It was understood that preparations had been made to move British troops to Egypt from Palestine in event of an emergency—ostensibly to protect British interests.

Farouk, who became ruler under a regency on the death of his father in the spring of 1936, dispatched a letter to Nahas, dismissing his government for "governing illegally."

Chief's Face Is Red as His Car Starts to Burn

New York—(AP)—The fire chief's car caught fire twice today and his face was as red as his transportation.

Responding to a downtown blaze, assistant Chief Joseph O'Hanlon and his chauffeur discovered the upholstery ablaze. They stopped and they thought—extinguished the fire.

Washington—(AP)—Senate Republican Leader McNary of Oregon charged today that attacks on "big business" by administration spokesmen constituted "an obvious effort to create an alibi" to explain the current recession.

He challenged as "political" two recent speeches of Robert Jackson, assistant attorney general. They "apparently were made," he asserted, "to prepare the way" for President Roosevelt's message to congress next Monday.

"This is not the way of handling a grave domestic problem," declared McNary. "The approach to solution of this problem ought to be made in an open and frank way, with encouragement to all citizens."

"This is the time for good will instead of political speeches directed at one group of citizens," he told reporters. "Business probably is entitled to some censure, but not all of it."

Psychology of Fear
He said a psychology of fear had seized the public and that citizens "don't know what to expect in legislation—they are disappointed in the effect of some that has passed."

This fear, he added, was creating a general "wave of confidence" and adding to the recession.

Discussing Jackson's attack on monopolistic practices, Senator McNary declared "statute books are covered with anti-monopoly legislation. What we need is enforcement of the legislation we already have."

In his message Monday Mr. Roosevelt generally is expected to outline his program for meeting the business recession.

Speaking in Philadelphia yesterday, assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson charged business with "general strikes" designed to "liquidate the New Deal."

At 8 o'clock tonight, C. S. T., over a NBC radio hookup, Secretary Ickes will carry on in similar vein under the title, "It Is Happening Here."

Members of congress showed conflicting reactions to the Jackson speech, but the generally interpreted it as a reflection of the current administration attitude which the president will expound next Monday.

Roosevelt To Speak
To emphasize the importance of his annual message, Mr. Roosevelt has announced he would deliver it in person. He will speak again Saturday.

Extensive War Games Planned

All Branches of U. S. Military Service to be Represented

Washington—(AP)—The navy department disclosed today that every branch of the nation's military forces would join in war games to start the last of January at Culebra island, off Puerto Rico.

The coast guard will participate for the first time, but otherwise the maneuvers will be similar to those held there annually for the last four years, officials said. Culebra island is a naval preserve.

Probably 6,000, or more, officers and men will join in the maneuvers, which will be based on the military problem of landing forces from the sea.

Rear Admiral Alfred W. Johnson, who is scheduled to take command of the fleet's training detachment Jan. 5, will be in general command. The battleships New York, Arkansas and Wyoming, comprising the detachment, will take 2,000 marines commanded by Brigadier General Richard P. Williams from their Quantic, Va., base.

The army will be represented by a battalion of infantry under Brigadier General Laurence Halstead, and the coast guard by the Cutter Bibb, in charge of Commander James Pine. The Bibb will proceed to the scene from Norfolk, Va.

Gale Warnings Posted Along Pacific Coast

Seattle—(AP)—Gale warnings flew along the Oregon and Washington coasts again today.

Four days of gales, heavy rains, snows and attendant floods and slides already have taken six lives and caused heavy property damage. No official estimate was made of damage over the entire Pacific northwest, but British Columbia authorities said the storm would cost that province alone between $200,000 and $400,000.

Rebels Try to Break Loyalist Grip on Teruel

Franco Starts Strong Counter-Offensive to Recapture City

REPORTS CONFLICT

Government Says 'Violent Counter-Attacks Were Repulsed'

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Border
—(AP)—General Francisco Franco's counter-offensive to recapture Teruel spread today into what insurgents' dispatches described as the "most extensive military operation" since the start of the Spanish civil war.

Powerfully reinforced insurgent troops hammered at government forces trying to hold the provincial capital. Infantry assaults were strongly supported by tanks, artillery and aircraft.

The insurgents reported taking strategic hills between Teruel and Villastar. Barcelona dispatches, on the other hand, declared General Franco's "violent counter-attacks were repulsed."

The stubborn insurgent garrison still defending a part of Teruel against government forces in the city week radioed it could hold out a "long time yet," the insurgents said. The garrison's water supply was cut off.

Report Fascists Trapped
Government dispatches, however, said the insurgents were trapped in the basement of a burning convent and increased pressure was being exerted to crush their resistance.

The Spanish insurgent high command reported today that its army struggling to rescue the besieged garrison of Teruel had broken through government lines northwest of the city.

A Salamanca communique said "all objectives" were captured in a series of surprise attacks yesterday. The insurgents reported an advance of one mile and a quarter, which "disorganized the enemy ranks."

A Barcelona communique said the assault centered around Celadas, about 12 miles northwest of Teruel, but denied the insurgents' fan-shaped offensive against an ground despite an onslaught by 30 planes and waves of infantry.

Planes Support Advance
The action, started yesterday morning when planes supporting General Miguel's Aranda's relief columns, bombed government positions. The infantry attack followed, resulting in "all heights falling into our power" at noon, the insurgents said.

They reported the government's losses from both land and air offensives was heavy.

Without giving further details on the siege of the garrison trapped in Teruel last week by the government's surprise offensive, the insurgents said those besieged were still in radio communication with Zaragoza.

The garrison, estimated at about 3,000 men, and about an equal number of civilians in its protection were still holding out in a convent and the civil governor's palace. Both of these fastnesses were under constant fire.

Chinese Catholic Is Murdered by Assassin

Shanghai—(AP)—J. Lo Pa-Hong, China's most prominent Catholic layman and the chairman of Shanghai's new civic association, was killed in the French concession today by an assassin disguised as a policeman.

Police expressed the fear that the slaying was the start of a terrorist campaign to prevent Chinese from cooperating with Japanese establishment of a new regime.

The assassin, who escaped, was believed to have been a patriot-terrorist, angered because Lo's civic association had planned to work with Japanese in rehabilitating areas around Shanghai.

Founder of the Catholic Action society here, Lo had directed collection of large sums for Catholic charities. His work had received world-wide recognition.

The French government had made him a knight of the Legion of Honor, and the Belgian government, Knight of the Order of Leopold II.

Federal Officials Silent on Mystery Shooting of Yacht Owner on Cruise

San Pedro, Calif.—(AP)—Through fog-shrouded seas off the Mexican coast the coast guard patrol boat Perseus beat a course today today, concealing in official silence the story of the mysterious shooting of a wealthy yacht owner on a disastrous pleasure cruise.

Not until some time after midnight, when the Perseus was expected to put in here with the derelict, 38-foot schooner Aafje in tow, may the circumstances be told of Owner Dwight L. Faulding's death on the high seas.

Open Attack Upon Defense Stand in Federal Oil Case

Prosecution Says Artificial Prices Could Have Been Maintained

Madison—(AP)—Government prosecutors began today their attack on the contention of the defense in the federal gasoline price-fixing case that 16 defendant major oil companies could not have maintained artificial prices in the midwest in 1935 and 1936.

Sidney Svensrud, Cleveland, of Standard Oil company of Ohio—not a defendant—testified in cross-examination by the government that the question of trade-acceptance of a brand of gasoline is an important factor considered by a jobber in making a change to another supplier.

The government, charging the defendants with raising and fixing prices at high, arbitrary and competitive levels, seeks to show that such prices would not necessarily permit other companies to invade the marketing territory.

Svensrud, qualified by the defense as a marketing expert, said yesterday that "nobody could get away with a higher price than the competition would warrant" because "other companies would be glad to increase their operations in this area."

Special Prosecutor Hammond began his opening cross-examination, elicited from the witness a statement that selling gasoline of a popular brand was a vital point to a jobber. Svensrud said that anyone invading the territory would have to do some advertising to win notice for his brand.

Perjury Charges Probe Asked in Bombing Cases

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—Possible repercussions from the government's trial and conviction of 36 men for Illinois coal field conspiracy bombings loomed today as the federal bureau of investigation was asked to probe perjury charges in the case.

Howard Doyle, acting at the suggestion of Judge Charles G. Briggle, made the request in a letter, suggesting special agents be assigned to the investigation immediately.

Judge Briggle had declared that "perjury was rampant" in the five-weeks trial, asserting that "neither side had any monopoly on the offense." He urged prosecutors to continue their investigation of the case to the end that the "guilty be punished."

Nearly 400 witnesses were called to the stand by both sides during the trial which involved the bitter and violent dispute between the Progressive Miners and the United Mine Workers between 1932 and 1935. Many of the items of evidence were supported by conflicting versions.

Chinese Fight Jap Gains in Shantung Area

Foreigners are Endangered As Fierce Battles Develop

GUNBOATS ARE READY

Americans Fleeing From Spreading Warfare In Interior

Shanghai—(AP)—The Japanese armies met stiff Chinese resistance today on Shantung province fronts outside Tsingtao, the dynamite-rocked North China seaport from which a number of Americans were in flight.

Japanese sources themselves sent word of fierce fighting some 100 miles west of Tsingtao, between the railroad centers of Weihsein and Tsinchow. South of Tsinan, the conquered provincial capital, warfare on the outskirts of Taian gave China's sacred mountain, Tai Shan, a baptism of fire.

The United States gunboat Sacramento docked in Shanghai and disembarked first American civilian refugees from the threatened port 400 miles to the north. Twenty-five Americans, with a number of nurses and dependents, made the trip.

Another contingent of American "Tsing" refugees, headed for Shanghai on the steamer Shantung. The United States cruiser Marblehead and destroyer Pope stood ready to evacuate remaining Americans.

Flee to Hong Kong
Still more Americans fled from the spreading warfare deep in the interior. A flag-decked refugee train left Hankow for Hong Kong with 313 Americans and other foreigners under Japanese assurance of safe passage over the frequently bombarded route.

Even though resistance delayed the Japanese advance on Tsingtao, Chinese apparently were resigned to loss of the city. They spread destruction with dynamite and flames to leave for the war machine engaged in swallowing five North China provinces only "scorched earth . . . broken tile."

Late last night Chinese soldiers blew up Tsingtao's telegraph, cable and radio offices. Today they touched off land mines under a Japanese bawery, Japanese warehouses, and a die factory.

There were heavy explosions along the waterfront, probably at Japanese-owned dry docks and repair shops. Before dawn, flames shot skyward from waterfront buildings.

Chinese police notified the foreign colony that Tsingtao's electric light plant would be blown up later today.

Foreigners, meanwhile, completed organization of the vigilante force which they hoped would quell possible disorder before expected entry of Japanese troops.

'Kidnaper' Slain, Another Jailed

Alleged Leader in Abduction Takes Own Life To Escape Arrest

Flat River, Mo.—(AP)—One youth was dead, another in jail, and Sheriff A. A. Bayles announced today the Monday night "kidnaping" of C. A. Robertson had been "cleaned up."

Bayles asserted Marvin Wright, 24, whose body lay in a morgue here, had been identified as the leader in the abduction of the Desloge, Mo., real estate dealer.

The sheriff held 16-year-old Everett Cochran in jail after announcing the youth had admitted participating in the wild ride through southeast Missouri into Arkansas. He said Cochran had identified Wright as "the brains." No charges have been filed.

Robertson identified Cochran as "one of 'em" after leading the sheriff to the youth's Bonne Terre, Mo., home yesterday.

The sheriff declared Wright apparently shot himself as officers closed in on his mother's home to arrest him. He said a farewell note, begging Wright's brothers to "go straight" was found in the dead man's pocket.

Robertson was recovering from gunshot wounds in the right hand and left leg that he said he suffered in escaping from his abductors after a "night of horror."

Knudsen Will Testify Before Senate Group

Detroit—(AP)—William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors corporation, announced today he would accept an invitation to testify before the senate committee on unemployment relief at Washington the forenoon of Jan. 6.

Knudsen said yesterday he had planned an extensive business trip during January and had asked the committee to postpone his appearance until Jan. 28.

Strikes Spreading To Rich Mining Region in France

Scores Offer To Give Their Blood To Save Heroine To Save Heroine

SAILORS STILL OUT

Firm Action Causes Utility Workers to Resume Jobs

Jersey City, N. J.—(AP)—Two score men stood by today ready to give blood transfusions to a 93-pound blond heroine of the Plaza hotel fire who stuck to her switchboard yesterday arousing guests as she beat out her blazing clothing with her hands.

Among the last to flee the fire fatal to two other hotel employees, 35-year-old Helen Sullivan had to run through a wall of flame in the lobby, and staggered into the street so badly burned no one at first recognized her.

Part of her dress was burned off, and her face, chest and hands were burned.

Nearly delirious from pain when she reached the medical center she asked about an aged widow and an aged couple who lived at the hotel. Told all the guests were saved, her flame-blackened face lighted with a smile.

A thousand coal miners at Anzin, near Valenciennes, quit work this morning in protest against discharge of three miners.

This stoppage aroused official concern lest the strike spread among all of the 16,000 miners employed by the Anzin company. Local government officials sought to negotiate a settlement.

Premier Camille Chauvignat's threat to call striking public service workers, most of whom are army reservists, to the colors, caused prompt submission to his demands for settlement of the Paris strike, which had threatened to undermine the people's front government.

Minister of Labor Andre Fervier was trying to negotiate the other Paris strikes, affecting food truckers, warehouses and the Goodrich Rubber company plant.

Sailors On Strike
Six hundred sailors at Rouen, whose recent walkout tied up 35 ships, continued on strike.

The agreement to call off the Paris public service strike came in the early hours of the morning after labor delegates had shuttled back and forth between their own meetings and government offices through the night.

The strikers, 12,000 strong, were notified to return to their jobs soon after daybreak. Labor leaders said, however, that all the paralyzed services probably would not be restored to normal until noon.

The city's 12 subway lines and all bus lines started carrying passengers again at 8 a. m.

Street cleaners and rubbish and garbage collectors started hurried rounds of the capital to catch up with their neglected work.

Rubbish Cans Out
Overflowing cans lined the streets and there were heaped rubbish containers in front of the residence of President Albert Lebrun.

Electric, gas and water plant workers went back to their posts, swelling the skeleton crews which had assured the city of at least some supplies during the strike.

The settlement of the strike when it has been in a political crisis as a triumph for the radical-socialist premier of the people's front regime, whose threat to mobilize the workers as members of the French army was credited with breaking the workers' resistance.

Under the government's threat the strikers themselves would have become strikebreakers—called out as army reserves, sent back to the same municipal jobs from which they had walked out and ordered to maintain transportation, water, gas and light supplies as well as other services they had crippled or halted.

The compromise gave the protesting municipal workers a 70-franc-a-month ($2.31) living allowance—sort of a raise to meet increased living costs.

U. A. W. Will Reduce Its Staff of Organizers

Detroit—(AP)—Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, notified international representatives today that the staff of organizers would be reduced next week. He would not say how many of the 180 organizers on the international union's pay roll would be dismissed.

The council made public a letter it had sent to Governor Elmer A. Benson of Minnesota. It set forth: "The council wishes to inform you it has sent to the board of regents of the University of Minnesota the following statement:

Ask Reinstatement Of Professor Fired During World War

Chicago—(AP)—The executive council of the American Federation of Teachers today urged the University of Minnesota to reinstate Prof. William A. Schaper, who was dismissed 20 years ago because of his opposition to war.

The council made public a letter it had sent to Governor Elmer A. Benson of Minnesota. It set forth: "The council wishes to inform you it has sent to the board of regents of the University of Minnesota the following statement:

"We urge favorable action upon Governor Benson's suggestion that you invite Prof. William A. Schaper to return to the University of Minnesota and that the resolution of Sept. 13, 1917, by which Prof. Schaper was dismissed, be rescinded. There can be no doubt that Prof. Schaper is a man of brilliant capabilities and was so regarded by his colleagues at the time of dismissal, which was admittedly due to war hysteria. His reinstatement at this time, when there is war in the world that may conceivably involve the United States, and when attacks upon academic freedom are increasingly frequent, would help defend the integrity and security of teachers throughout the country."

Advocates of Big Navy Say Program Would Create Jobs

Believe Adoption Would Stimulate Employment in U. S.

Washington—Advocates of a big navy suggested today that construction of additional warships, being considered primarily because of concern over international developments, would give a direct stimulus to employment and industry in the United States.

Jobs would be created at the scene of construction and "behind the lines" they said, in fashioning raw materials into finished vessels. Announcing it was possible further requests might be sent to congress later, President Roosevelt already has disclosed that the budget for the next fiscal year provides for two battleships, two light cruisers, eight destroyers and six submarines.

By estimates of navy officials, these would provide a maximum aggregate of 20,000 jobs over a four-year period.

Informed persons said further that the navy department was prepared to ask for 10 to 15 more 10,000-ton cruisers, costing about $20,000,000 each. If authorized, their construction would be spread over several years.

Building a cruiser of that size means the employment for three years of a skilled force gradually increasing to 1,600. Such ships are supplementary to battleships, and on the basis of comparative figures, the United States is behind both Britain and Japan in the cruiser category.

Navy department estimates figure that 5,000 men at the peak of employment, work on a battleship. It takes four years to build one. Destroyers and submarines employ about 500 men in their three-year construction period.

Wages Chief Cost

From 85 to 90 per cent of the cost of a warship is represented by wages of navy personnel, it is estimated. The chief material comes from the now ailing steel industry.

Eight navy yards and seven private plants are engaged at present in building 74 vessels, forming the navy's largest construction program since the wholesale scrapping of battleships and battle cruisers after the 1922 naval limitation treaty.

Many of the 74 already have been launched, leaving ways available for laying of new keels.

Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the senate foreign relations committee, endorsing the idea of fleet expansion, said today that "it will require at least $300,000,000 to $400,000,000 to bring our navy to a safe standard."

"While in a sense that is a large sum," he added, "it is a small insurance policy against the billions of dollars and the hundreds of thousands of our citizens' lives which would be lost in a war."

W. College Avenue Was Wooded Section Just 81 Years Ago

Resurfacing of College avenue this summer was one of the major civic improvements of the year. Along with the resurfacing work, three blocks of new pavement at the west end were laid.

Among the old records found in the files of the county clerk recently was a copy of proceedings of the board of trustees of the village of Appleton showing that 81 years ago, 1856, plans were being made to extend the avenue westward.

Following is a resolution passed on May 15, 1856:

"Resolved: That the street commissioner be and he is hereby directed to endeavor to procure the clearing of that portion of College avenue lying in the Third ward of all timber, wood and brush for the timber situated there upon."

The old records further show that following petitions, an extension of the street was ordered constructed.

Frost Often Adds To Soil Erosion On Steep Slopes

Damage Not So Severe When Ground Is Held by Roots of Trees, Shrubs

Gullying, sheet erosion and wind erosion are not the only processes responsible for soil losses, according to the soil conservation service in a bulletin to R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county soil conservation service.

Frost often causes a considerable amount of soil damage. In freezing weather, particles of the surface soil on bare ground are often lifted on top of needle-like frost crystals which grow up from the surface of the ground. On fairly steep slopes the crystals have a tendency to break off near the base as they melt and the soil particles which they carry then fall or roll a short distance downhill. In the course of a single winter the surface soil may be moved downhill in this way for a distance of several feet, the bulletin states.

Another little-known type of erosion has been found on steep slopes where the surface soil is underlain by a silty clay subsoil. When the ground becomes saturated, the soil sometimes slides or flows downhill, leaving the hillside rough and broken and in some cases exposing areas of subsoil or bedrock. This type of erosion is common in the upper Ohio Valley and many other parts of the country.

During prolonged hot, dry weather, evaporation sometimes removes so much of the moisture from steep exposed banks that they no longer have sufficient cohesion to stand at a high angle. The soil crumbles and falls away little by little, accumulating in a pile at the base of the slope.

None of these types of erosion is as severe when the soil is held by the roots of trees, shrubs, and grasses, the bulletin says.

Split Between Government and Business Grows

Neither Side Wants Fascism—Each Wants Power, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Something has happened in the inner councils of the Roosevelt administration which may mean that the president has decided to declare war on instead of make peace with American business. Or it may mean that a split has occurred within the ranks of the administration, which is forcing the president's hand, shifting him over from a position of amicable relations with business to one of increased hostility.

Lawrence with business to one of increased hostility.

Whichever view is correct, the situation is one of gravity for the American people. Instead of cooperation to bring back jobs to those out of work, instead of bringing back confidence and an increase in wages and payrolls, it implies a period of polemics and bitterness—the very worst thing that could possibly happen in a democracy struggling to keep its freedom from fascist influences.

It would be easy to dismiss the speeches of Robert H. Jackson, assistant attorney general, as mere outspoken bid of an ambitious man to win the Democratic and American labor nomination for governor of New York next year, thus paving the way for a presidential nomination in 1940. It would be relatively simple to say that other men have climbed to political fame and prominence by just such tactics. While one may disagree with Mr. Jackson's view, there is nothing wrong at all with his publicity technique, and many a man—Republican and Democrat—has used his public office as a springboard for political campaigning.

But when one finishes reading and explaining the motive of the Jackson speeches, it doesn't answer the question of why Secretary Ickes should be preparing to make a speech attacking the business men of the country.

After all, Mr. Ickes sits at the cabinet table of the president of the United States. For several days now, the whispering columns which reflect New Deal purposes and "left wing" conspiracies have been saying that Mr. Ickes was about to deliver a bitter speech denunciation of business.

Presumably, the president knew this in advance, too. Important speeches are rarely made by more than one official in the administration without the knowledge of the boss. There are rumors that Secretary Wallace and Governor Eccles of the Federal Reserve board counseled against the move, saying the country was tired of bickering. Incidentally, part of the technique of the "left wingers" is to carry on a sniping campaign through favorite channels against men in the cabinet or important government agencies who happen to breathe a few refreshing words of moderation into the scene and seek to restrain their over-zealous colleagues.

Granting that Mr. Roosevelt knows about all these speeches and under-cover campaigns, why does he allow it? Either he feels it is a good thing to have discussion of various points of view, or he is becoming reconciled to the idea that, with the ending of his second term, new figures and personalities must rise to take political power in the Democratic party and that he should not interfere in the scramble that is going on among his aides for that 1940 nomination.

Another report is to the effect that business men have failed recently to meet the president's advances even half way and that the iterated expressions of blame heaped upon the administration for the present business recession finally got on the nerves of Mr. Roosevelt and caused him to let his chief gunners let loose a few barbs against those who were trying to sneer him with the onus of the so-called "Roosevelt depression."

The whole situation appears to be growing more fantastic and childish every day. Two powerful forces—government and business—stand aloof from one another, calling names and attaching blame. No progress is made toward constructive bridging of the gap and business conditions continue every day to produce more and more uneasiness. Is this not a condition which may some day develop into a fascistism on the theory that discipline by Democratic methods is failing to provide jobs for the unemployed?

Don't Want Fascism

The administration spokesmen rather cleverly deny that they want any fascism. They attribute to big business the true fascist complex. But the truth is neither side wants fascism—each wants power. Business men say they want less restriction by government. The political government which controls the economic system says it wants more restriction.

Back of it all is a fight, lately called a controversy between monopoly and anti-monopoly, but actually a struggle to control the pricing system of the country. The new deal thinks big business passed on wage costs and added profits, and that consumers rebelled at the high prices and stopped buying. Business spokesmen say the administration started out in 1933 deliberately to force the price curve upward till it might reach the 1926 level and then, when the rise was too precipitate and a business recession came, turned around and blamed business for doing that which was one of the original New Deal objectives.

What will the average man think and what will he do? He cannot follow the intricacies of blame-shifting and the Machiavellian art of creating an alibi. He can only face the fact that economic conditions are worse than they were, that the Roosevelt administration has held in the last few years assumed responsibility for the welfare of the citizenry and has more power, financial, economic and political, than ever was bestowed upon any administration in the history of the United States, and still the unemployment figures are growing and business and values are declining. If things are wrong, what does the administration propose to do to put them right? And what about those 531 men in congress who draw $10,000 a year apiece for the job of representing the bewildered citizenry? Do they agree that the way to produce confidence in the business world is to hit the American business man over the head with a brick, or to tackle at once the mistakes of the New Deal and make corrections at the same time that will not let business or labor or any ambitious New Dealers obtain dictatorial possession of the rights, liberties and savings of the American people?

New Year's Resolutions Taken Lightly and Soon Forgotten, Survey Shows

BY DON ANDERSON

Questioning of a cross-section of Appleton's populace yesterday revealed that New Year's resolutions, "reservations" as one youngster called them, aren't regarded very seriously, are taken lightly, in fact, by most persons and are usually forgotten as the months ride along. "I can't even remember one of the many I made a year ago," a pleasant salegirl declared, "so I don't see any point in making any this time."

One young man doesn't draw up his resolutions until "about 11:30 New Year's eve when I can always think up a bunch of dandies." Because he does it in a spirit of jest, at a moment when the gaiety is reaching its zenith, they are as fleeting as the squawk of the noise-makers and the laughter of the crowd.

But he has fun thinking them up, he says, and telling his companions about them.

"I made one resolution once, kept it during the year, and lost 40 pounds," one business man said. "Maybe I'll do again this year. I could stand a little dieting. I'm not sure, though."

When asked what creeds she would adopt for 1938, a waitress laughed and remarked: "I'm going to make a whole lot of them. Then I'll have fun breaking them."

Will Keep Record

An insurance salesman said he was going to "quit pinball machines and watch my gambling more carefully."

He took out a little book, stating he had resolved to keep a record of all his losses and gains at poker and bridge for the year. "I did it one year and found out I gambled. I don't think I'll go over the nickel limit on cards this year, however."

Some persons believe that behavior patterns are pretty well defined when adulthood is reached and that resolutions wouldn't make any difference.

A chef took the matter as a joke. "I don't need any resolutions. Why, I haven't any faults." One of his kitchen helpers volunteered information to the contrary, but the chef insisted in good humor that no alteration or reformation was needed.

"Never bother with them" was the most frequent answer to the query of New Year's resolutions. One man raised his right hand and swore he would stop beating his wife. She was standing nearby. "That will make me so happy," she said, "but what will the children do for excitement?"

"No Snipes"

Most of the persons who listed resolutions they are determined to ness world is to hit the American business man over the head with a brick, or to tackle at once the mistakes of the New Deal and make corrections at the same time that will not let business or labor or any ambitious New Dealers obtain dictatorial possession of the rights, liberties and savings of the American people?

maintain during the next year toyed with the ridiculous, like the man mentioned above. Refraining from sniping cigarettes out of gutters, always wearing a shirt to work, and breathing quite regular were mentioned jocularly by men accosted on the matter.

Incidentally, January 1 has not always stood as the first day of the new year.

The ancient Egyptians, Phoenicians, and Persians began the year at the autumnal equinox, Sept. 21, and the Greeks, up until the fifth century B. C., observed New Year's day on December 21.

The Romans once celebrated the opening of another year December 21, but Caesar adopted the Julian calendar, which postponed it to January 1.

The Jews have always calculated their civil year from the first day of the month of Tishri, Sept. 6-Oct. 5—but their ecclesiastical year starts at the spring equinox, March 21.

In the early medieval days, March 25 was most commonly observed among Christian peoples.

Until the Norman Conquest, England regarded Dec. 25 as the big day. William the Conqueror then ordered that the year start Jan. 1 because, it is believed, it coincided with his coronation. Later England banished their custom and observed New Year's day with the rest of the Christendom, March 25.

The Gregorian calendar (1582) was accepted by all the Catholic countries at once. But the calendar, used today, was not accepted by Germany, Denmark and Sweden until 1700 and by England in 1753.

Farley Claims Press Gets Big Camouflaged Subsidy

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—A few weeks ago Jim Farley said that if he had a message for the nation he would prefer to send it by radio, as the papers would edit out all the rascals if he gave it to them. Some time earlier he had made a radio speech in which he denounced a time-honored subsidy of the newspaper and magazine business, and he was sore because that message was widely ignored by the daily press.

Pegler

Now, for a fact, the second class postage subsidy of the press is such an old story that some editors may have hunted it on the dead hook on the ground that its news value had long ago expired, but the omission of Jim's remarks did give support to his claim that the papers silence copy which is inimical to their own interests.

The post office department claims that in the last ten years alone, to say nothing of all the years since the special postal rates were established in 1851, the newspaper and periodical press has enjoyed a camouflaged subsidy of more than $1,000,000,000.

This sum represents the department's own estimate of the difference between the postage paid for handling papers and magazines and the actual cost of providing this service. The breakdown, as the statisticians call figure analysis, may be disputed by the defense, but that is the post office department's story and has been for many years.

Jim raised the first-class postage millions out of the nine million stamp collectors in the U.S.A. by turning out so many special memorial issues that the printing and engraving staffs began to think they were working for a funny paper. He also raised the rate for the advertising content of second-class matter, but it was reduced to the old figures after two years, whereas the first-class rate is still up there.

Claim Press Pays 20 Cents for $1 of Service

And it is the contention of the post office in its published figures that the press of the country, meaning magazines as well as papers, enjoys a government subsidy in the form of insufficient postal rates while it hollers calamity about the subsidies to other industries and scolds successive postmasters general for failing to break even. The post office claims that the press pays 20 cents for a dollar's worth of postal service, and some of the publishers claim that it is the subscriber who gets the subsidy, as he would have to pay more for his reading and advertising matter if the rate were raised.

That was the proposition when the privilege was established in 1851. The country was sparsely settled, and the statesmen thought the people deserved reading lessons even at the cost of a little deficit. Under some conditions, to this very day, certain publications are hurried and delivered absolutely free within the county of publication, but that privilege, though wrong, is a small matter, accounting for only $8,000,000 a year of the deficiency on press matter.

The argument occurs at the point where the post office claims to handle press matter as first-class mail for the second-class rate. First-class matter pays 48 cents a pound and second-class pays a variety of rates up to 7 cents a pound for advertising content.

Papers Avoid Mails as Being too Slow

Newspaper people insist that a magazine or paper receives more leisurely and less careful treatment than first-class letters, but there seems to be no disposition on the part of the press to demand equal treatment at the much cheaper rate. The magazines apparently get more benefit than the daily or Sunday papers, however, because they do a great mail subscription business, whereas the papers, what with street sales, route carriers and truck delivery, have come to avoid the mails as being too slow.

At any rate, here is the message which Mr. Farley wanted to get over to the nation and thought he couldn't convey through the press:—That the press, which in many cases is very righteous about subsidies and in most cases is very ticklish about its freedom, not only enjoys an important government subsidy and refuses to legislate the matter with the taxpayers but compromises its independence by accepting a very valuable favor from the government.

And if the department's figures are correct, then the amount which might be gained by taking the exempt officials and employees is very paltry picking by comparison. Now we will see whether Mr. Farley's message gets past the perfidious conspiracy of silence. If you don't see this, let me know.

The WORLD OF STAMPS

BY JAMES B. HATCHER
Glancing Back At 1937

Outstanding in 1937 philatelic history were the British empire's coronation issues, the boom in souvenir sheet collecting and the remarkable flood of new Spanish stamps.

The coronation issues, totaling 189 stamps with a face value of about $12 rivaled the popularity of the 1935 George V. silver jubilee issues (249 stamps, face value about $23). The coronation stamps, being fewer and having no high values, cost only half as much.

Ordinarily calm colonial post-offices were swamped on May 12 as the first-day cover procurers descended. Remembering the demand for jubilees, which boosted the retail price from $30 to $105, dealers and speculators placed heavy orders with Crown agents for coronations. But so many were printed that the speculators failed to realize much.

Souvenir Sheet Boom
For many years collectors have been familiar with small commemorative sheets. This year the collecting of souvenir sheets sprouted into a new branch of the hobby and acquired its own Souvenir Issues association and monthly magazine.

In November, this magazine listed 47 little sheets issued since 1926 to commemorate philatelic shows or postal anniversaries, and 41 issued since 1906 to commemorate such events as Hitler's birthday and Pushkin's centenary.

Stanley Gibbons, Ltd., announced it would not deal in souvenir issues (249 stamps, face value about $23). The coronation stamps, being fewer and having no high values, cost only half as much.

postal purposes. Scott has given tentative listing to some, full listing to the U. S. ones.

There were rumors of uncricket-like maneuverings in the distribution of such sheets as the Danzig Dapostas and the Iceland one honoring King Christian's silver jubilee. An Austrian stamp periodical declared in September that the twilight of the souvenir sheet "era" had arrived.

Postal departments of many governments saw a chance to profit from the popularity of the little panes and new issues were numerous, while stamp periodicals debated the question.

Spain's War Stamps
The bewildering flood of new stamps from Spain, which began during the latter part of 1936, was said to have produced more than 1,000 varieties. By far the majority were credited to, or blamed on, the rightist (Franco) government. These issues offered the opportunity to get much-needed funds and spread propaganda, two strong temptations.

The average collector eyed the entire lot warily, having no way to determine the authenticity or philatelic desirability of the countless overprints, provisionals and municipal issues. Gossip said many of them were produced elsewhere in Europe and never saw a Spanish postoffice. Few canceled copies were available in this country.

More and More Commemoratives
The large number of new commemorative issues pointed to a growing tendency of several governments to eye the stamp collector's purse. France and Cuba joined the list of fast producers of trivial or scarcely necessary commemoratives. Several foreign governments helped the United States celebrate the anniversary of its Constitution by issuing commemorative stamps.

The U. S. postoffice prohibited precanceling of any more commemoratives, perturbing the precancel fans. . . . A Nicaraguan airmail set of map stamps aggravated an old boundary dispute with Honduras. . . . Bolivia went in for bi-sects. . . . Temple university and a night high school for adults at South Orange, N. J., added philatelic courses. . . . The Earl of Crawford medal was awarded to Stanley B. Ashbrook for his study of the 10-cent 1851 U. S. issue. . . . Mr. Farley's department put out 17 new stamps, 15 commemoratives and 2 airmails, against 9 issues in 1938 . . . Magenta was introduced as a new color for U. S. 3-cent adhesives.

Frank Spearman, Former Resident Of City, Is Dead

78-Year-Old Author Succumbs at Hollywood; Came Here in 1868

Frank H. Spearman, 78, who wrote "Whispering Smith" and other stories and who lived in Appleton during 10 years of his youth and for two more after his marriage, died last night in a hospital at Hollywood, Calif.

Born in Buffalo, N. Y., he was brought to Appleton by his parents in 1868. The family residence was on Prospect avenue, just east of the John W. Norton house.

Mr. Spearman attended Lawrence college and was a member of the Class of '77, but his parents' death interrupted his studies and he did not graduate. He left Appleton in 1878 for Chicago where he joined his elder brother in the wholesale grocery business.

He married Eugene Lonergan, daughter of a Chicago pioneer, in 1882. They celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at Hollywood in the summer of 1934.

After his marriage, he returned to Appleton and lived here two years. His health forced him to move out west, into Nebraska where he opened a small bank and started his writing.

His first stories and articles were sold to Harper's Weekly and Harper's magazine. After regaining his health, he returned to Chicago and took up fiction writing in earnest. Some 50 short stories date from this period.

His first novel, "Doctor Bryson," was an intimate picture of the life of a Chicago eye surgeon. A novel followed, "The Close of the Day." The second novel was a story of frontier railroading entitled "The Daughter of a Magnate."

It was in the book "Whispering Smith," however, where he created his famous character and it was this book that brought him fame. The story was made into a motion picture in 1915 and again in 1926, the latter production starring H. B. Warner.

In subsequent novels, Mr. Spearman covered a wide range of fields, Chicago and New York society in "The Marriage Verdict," "Robert Kimberly," and "Merrill Davies"; the Rocky mountain frontier in "Nan of Music Mountain," "Laramie Holds the Range," "Selwood of Sleepy Cat," "Flaming Jim"; European history in "Spanish Lover." He returned to the west for the setting of one of his later novels, "Hell's Desert."

They were in a car being driven south by Joseph Dickman when the machine and the passenger bus, driven by Lawrence Guthrie, 130 N. Badger avenue, collided. The bus had stopped when the collision occurred and the Dickman machine swerved across the highway and struck a telephone pole. Sheriff Lappen stated, Mrs. Dickman and daughter were taken to St. Elizabeth hospital.

Funeral services for S. H. Mendelson will be held Saturday

Waupaca.—S. H. Mendelson, 68, 207 S. Franklin street, Waupaca, died unexpectedly at his home about 5 o'clock this morning. Mr. Mendelson, a Waupaca merchant, apparently suffered a stroke and was thought to have hit his head on the bathtub in the bathroom where his body was found.

He was born April 29 1829 at Saginaw, Mich., and moved to Milwaukee with his family when a child. Mr. Mendelson came to Waupaca in 1921 and was in charge of men's furnishings at the Fair store until 1924 when he opened his own store.

Surviving are the widow and a daughter, Mercedes, at home.

Masonic rites will be conducted at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at Holy Funeral home in Waupaca by the Rev. Hugh Misdall, pastor of the First Methodist church, and at 10 o'clock Sunday morning in the chapel at Springhill cemetery in Milwaukee by Rabbi Samuel Hirschberg. Burial will be at Springhill cemetery.

Beet Growers Attend Meeting at Green Bay
Several Outagamie county farmers attended a meeting of sugar beet growers of the eastern part of the state at Green Bay Tuesday. The meeting was sponsored by the Wisconsin Agricultural Conservation committee and the federal programs under the soil conservation act were discussed.

C. R. Oviatt, sugar beet expert of the north central region for the AAA, explained the sugar act of 1937 and how it will fit in with the 1937 and 1938 program of agricultural conservation.

Monday, Jan. 8, at the Democratic Jackson day dinner.

Great significance has been attached by Washington observers to the tone of recent administration speeches. They followed a period of apparent indecision over future policies in view of the business situation.

Spokesmen for "left wing" administration followers were beginning to express the belief that the president was yielding to business demands. Conservative elements in the Democratic party had started to congratulate Mr. Roosevelt for showing a more friendly attitude toward industry.

It was Jackson who started the ball rolling in the other direction Sunday night in a speech blaming monopolistic "profiteering" for high prices and the current business slump.

His address yesterday was even more direct. Using language similar to that employed recently by Senator Norris (I-Neb.), he told the American Political Science association:

"The wrath of the people has been rising as they have seen Uncle Sam told to stick up his hands and deliver his utilities program, his monopoly program, his social security program and his tax program to one or another interested group."

The New Deal, he said, has done more for business than for labor. Contending the real danger was concentration of wealth, Jackson said:

"This private socialism, this private regimentation of industry, finance and commerce, if not stopped, is the forerunner of political socialism."

Varied Reactions
Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), leader of the fight against the Roosevelt court bill last session, commended this part of the speech. The tone of the address was deprecated, however, by Senator Van Nuys (D-Cal.).

"This fight between so-called 'big business' and the government is ruining small business, which is the backbone of the country," Van Nuys said. "If there are monopolies that exist contrary to law, our present anti-trust laws are sufficient to cope with them."

Senator Adams (D-Col.) expressed skepticism over Jackson's charge of a "strike" by business. "I don't know where big business would get it if it went on a strike," he said. "I don't know the purpose, when the price is so terrific."

Two Plead Guilty Of Taking Auto
One Sentenced to Reformatory; Other Placed On Probation

Stanley Cronce, 16, and Richard Ramsdall, 16, Clintonville, pleaded guilty of taking an automobile without the owner's consent before Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court yesterday afternoon.

Cronce was sentenced to serve from 1 to 3 years in the state reformatory at Green Bay. Ramsdall also was sentenced to from 1 to 3 years at the reformatory and then put on probation for the period to the state board of control.

The two youths admitted taking a car owned by William Blum, 915 N. Appleton street, Tuesday night. The car was reported stolen and a report broadcast over the police radio system at Oshkosh.

Sheriff Duncan Campbell, Waupaca, received the message and saw the car near Sugarbush. The youths fled but were caught a short time later and returned to Appleton. They waived preliminary examination and consented to being bound over immediately yesterday afternoon.

Potential Candidates are Reluctant to Toss Hats Into State Political Ring

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau. (C) — That there is no dearth of ambition in the hearts of Wisconsin's leading politicians has become apparent in political circles during recent weeks.

As ever, supposed candidates for the two highest offices in the gift of Wisconsin voters, the governorship and the United States senate seat, which becomes vacant in 1938, are coyly avoiding announcement of their aspirations, but are letting their friends and supporters do the talking.

Although there is no definite statement that any of ten or 12 leading politicians will be out as candidates during the next six months, there is plenty of talk about and for them. And that is how candidates are made in Wisconsin.

Here is a list of the men who are now figuring in political conversations: Congressman Thomas R. Amiel, of Elkhorn, Gerald J. Boileau, of Wausau, and Merlin Hull of Black River Falls, all Progressives, as probabilities for the United States senate; Speaker Paul R. Alfonsi of Pence, Progressive floorleader and speaker of the 1937 assembly, as an avowed candidate for that office; Adjutant General Ralph M. Immel, Progressive, as a candidate for either the United States senate or the governorship; Edward Samp, chairman of the Republican voluntary committee, for the senate; A. J. Thelen, formerly of De Pere and Green Bay, Democrat, for the governorship; Fred Clausen, Horicon manufacturer, Republican for the governorship; W. D. Carroll of Prairie du Chien, and Senator Harry W. Bolens of Port Washington, both conservative Democrats, as coalition possibilities for the governorship; Dr. Gunnar Gunderson of LaCrosse, favorite of northwestern Wisconsin Republicans for the governorship.

Report Hoan Not Interested

Recent reports hold that Mayor Daniel W. Hoan of Milwaukee, Socialist and Farmer-Labor-Progressive federation leader, is not interested in a seat in political office, despite the urgings of his liberal followers. Alfonsi, although it is said that his ambitions got a chilly reception from the Progressive party heads, is still nominally building himself up for the Progressive primary. Thus far, however, most likely Progressive candidates are Boileau, who made a name for himself in the special session of congress just ended, Hull, long time Progressive, former speaker of the assembly, and influential farm leader in his section of the state, and Amiel, one of the foremost liberals in the house of representatives.

It may be added that Amiel is by far the most radical of Wisconsin's leading Progressives, that he has differed on several occasions with the LaFollette's on fundamental party policy, and that accordingly the LaFollette's, always expedient, may not welcome him at the head of their ticket.

During the holiday season General Immel sent out thousands of greeting cards bearing a picture of "Old Bob" LaFollette taken by observers to mean that he is making a bid for political promotion. What he is seeking, however, is not made clear, unless he is thinking of 1938, or 1940.

For it has become pretty certain that Governor LaFollette will be a candidate for his executive office job again. His assistants are currently preparing for the campaign, gathering campaign material and photographs of the governor which will embellish party literature next summer and fall. Governor LaFollette recently announced that he will not make a decision until he talks with his Progressive friends over the state. But that statement was only good politics, it was pointed out. Local political chieftains like to be consulted on such things. Few believe that Phil will run for Senator Ryan Duffy's seat, for it is believed he realizes that Wisconsin will not send two LaFollette's to the senate, if only to avoid confusion.

Thelen Is Possibility

Thelen, the brains of the potent Wisconsin County Boards association, has been mentioned frequently as a possibility. Recently rumors have circulated that the young element in the coalition group will push him as a gubernatorial candidate.

Carroll and Bolens make no secret of their willingness to stand for promotion. Carroll has been in the running before, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor last year and for the senate in 1934. As a member of the state senate in 1935, he was the leader of the Republican-Democratic house coalition which frustrated Governor LaFollette's ambitious program, including the celebrated works bill.

Carroll's position as conservative whip was assumed in 1937 by Bolens, after the former's retirement. Both are regarded by the supporters as about the best the Democrats can offer in 1938, and both are sympathetic toward the new fusion movement, and courting consideration as candidates.

Samp, who recently blasted the coalition movement in a bitter letter to prominent Republican party leaders in the state, has been hailed by the Young Republican organization as their favorite for the United States senate job. Samp himself, however, disavows such intentions, says that he is interested merely in getting the Republican party in the state back on its feet. That, he adds, seems likely to be achieved during the next year.

Manawa Tax Total Nearly Same as During Last Year

Rate Slightly Lower but Assessment Is Somewhat Increased

Manawa — Taxes in the village of Manawa vary hardly at all this year compared with last, although a slight decrease in the rate is announced this week by J. C. Kinsman, village clerk. This drop, scarcely noticeable, will be partially offset by a small increase in the assessed valuation.

The sum of $21,220.31 will be raised here, compared to $21,343.81 last year, $19,881.76 in 1935, $16,963.26 in 1934, $17,521.76 in 1933, $17,935.12 in 1932, $19,374.45 in 1931, $21,627.81 in 1930, and $27,925.57 in 1929.

Village taxes themselves show a drop from $6,488.11 to $4,607.19. The county tax has increased from $7,330.85 to $7,785.20. Social taxes also show a sharp advance from $5,540.68 to $7,108.20, due both to the high school addition bonds and to a general upping of general running expenses. Included in the county taxes are sums for old age pension of $572.48 and for snow removal of $767.61.

In addition, there is a state tax of $157.49, state loans to schools of $1,822.25, overruns of tax roll $15.38, noxious weeds $15.75, snow removal in village $7.65, tax on beekeepers $12.20.

Valuation Higher
Assessed valuation of village property has increased slightly from $488,811 to $658,170. This is compared with the assessed valuation of $607,894 in 1935, $663,584 in 1934, $752,829 in 1933, and $812,353 in 1932. The rate per $1,000 is $22.22 compared to $23.71 last year, $28.45 in 1935, $25.535 in 1934, $25.92 in 1933, $26.60 in 1932, $26.56 in 1931, $34.94 in 1930.

Taxes in the town of Little Wolf show an advance of about eleven per cent, according to figures released by E. G. Zantow town clerk. The amount of taxes to be raised is $30,421.64, compared to $27,316.74 a year ago, $25,989.93 in 1935, $19,979.16 in 1934, and $20,423.09 in 1933. The assessed valuation of the town has increased from $1,395,596 to $1,399,165.

The rate per $1,000 valuation is

THE PROBLEM OF OUR OWN J. DOAKES

The Great White Father in Washington recently indicated that he wants Congress to ease the load on business. Congress must move swiftly if it is to help firms like J. Doakes Manufacturing Co., Inc., Fox River Valley, Wisconsin.

You won't find J. Doakes in the telephone directory because the name is a myth. The situation is not. It is a true situation, painfully familiar to some of our valley industries. They are not large industries, but their success is vital to prosperity in the valley. Altogether they employ thousands.

Prior to 1936 there was a succession of difficult years for Doakes. Only by clipping all corners, by using equipment as collateral for loans and by stretching credit to the limit was Doakes able to pull through. In January of this year, however, the books showed a profit of $10,000 for the preceding 52 weeks. Not exciting, but still the best showing since 1930.

Under the rules of common sense, Doakes should have begun 1937 using its improved showing as the basis of a program of debt reduction and plant modernization. This part of Wisconsin should have benefited from such a program.

It is of concern to note that none of these desirable ends was accomplished because the federal government had first claim to the $10,000 earned by Doakes due to a situation peculiar to firms in the Doakes classification. It seems that in figuring its profit, Doakes deducted $1,200 for federal taxes paid during the year, $800 for life insurance carried on officials to protect loans made to Doakes, and $10,000 for loss sustained on trading in old equipment. This amounts to $12,000.

Except for $2,000, the limit, that can be applied on the $10,000 trade-in loss and this figure allows for depreciation, none of these amounts were — or are — deductible in the eyes of the federal government. So, as far as Washington is concerned, Doakes made $20,000 in 1936 instead of $10,000. Thus, unless the company paid out most of $20,000 in dividends to stockholders, it was subject to the undivided profits tax among other federal taxes.

Yet how could Doakes pay out approximately $20,000 in dividends when no such sum existed in its treasury?

Doakes has no alternative but to pay the taxes—taxes to the amount of $5,236.00, or slightly more than half of what it actually netted in 1936. In addition Doakes paid the federal government what is called an Excise Tax which, in reality, is worse than our own real estate taxes because it is a tax upon real estate and everything else. Beyond that Doakes had to pay the state and local taxes. But the amounts so paid are permitted as deductions.

There are several Doakes in the valley, all receiving the same treatment at the hands of the federal government.

And you wonder why little industry is being strangled and you are surprised and disappointed that it does not show more activity, cannot in many instances arise from the ground?

WE HAVE THE EARMARKS OF BATTLE AT HOME

Let tears as well as charity begin at home.

The next time anyone sheds a tear over the savagery at Teruel or the slaughter along the Yangtze river he would do well to change the view to America.

Gaze out upon the magnificent American highway system. Those huddled forms that litter its dips and curves were yesterday living and smiling humans, jovial at their tasks, optimistic of the future, happy with their country and not even soured at its blunders.

In the four years of a bloody Civil war there was killed upon the fields of battle and died in our hospitals but slightly over the number we now kill in a comparable period on our roads.

With the advantage of the greatest safety campaign ever conducted in this country we make a new record of Christmas casualties on the highway.

We have done enough talking along certain lines. Something more effective than language is needed. The best piece of constructive work in this regard was a bill proposed by Senator Cushman to the legislature and duly pigeonholed. It was drawn with painstaking and laborious care. If it had any vote value the Legislature might not have given it such scant attention.

Really isn't it a bit ridiculous of us to become so highly incensed over bloody fields of battle that produce no more carnage than what is our daily fare upon our highways?

WAR MAKES MEN MAD

Almost buried under the screaming headlines of the Panay sinking a few days ago was a small item from Washington, relating that Senator Rush Holt, of West Virginia, refused to approve a federal appointment because the appointee, 20 years ago, had announced that Holt's father "ought to be shot" for opposing America's entrance into the world war.

The qualifications of the appointee, and the wisdom of Senator Holt's perhaps natural action need not greatly disturb the nation. But it should recall with a shock that such utterances could have been made in all good faith and sincerity only two decades ago, by a man presumably qualified for federal office, about another man who was a good enough citizen to have fathered a United States senator. The incident perhaps will arouse bitter memories in Wisconsin.

Already symptoms of the wartime hysteria are beginning to reappear. Men who should know better solemnly warn us of Japanese spies in every industrial plant and every fortification. Bonfires are built of cartons labeled "Made in Japan"—by coincidence, no doubt in the center of the American pottery industry, one of the heaviest sufferers from Japanese competition. Respect for the rights of neutrals, the necessity of crushing rampant militarism, taking up the white man's burden and all the rest of the trash that leads to bloody fields and white crosses is being refurbished and trotted out for the periodical parade.

Looking back across the years, utterances like that ascribed by Senator Holt to his father's opponent seem childish and bombastic. Twenty years from now will we look back with equal shame on some of the loose talk that again bids fair to become current?

A TIP FOR RIPLEY

Among the curious things in this world are things political whether Mr. Ripley can draw them or not.

And in the realm of curiosity is the monument to newspapers that has been built in just one year.

In 1936 with the President sweeping the country by 10 million, Administration leaders headed by Mr. Farley gave the newspapers the run-around and the horse-laugh. With something like 65 per cent of the press against the President's New Deal he trampled all opposition into the dust. The press, Mr. Farley said, was without influence. The nice part about that proposition is that a thing without influence is also without responsibility. And the press didn't seem to care. Now after the lapse of but a short twelve months the Administration has changed its tune from a thumping paean of victory to the slow moan of a funeral dirge.

And the cause of it all? None other than the press.

It simply cannot be that a pigmy has grown into a giant in so short a time. Newspapers better humble themselves. Anything with so much power is a menace.

Turn to one page of the New Deal and it says the press is a sucking babe without the strength to hold its drool. On the next page it is pictured as a strident Mars biting steel spikes in two, breaking gun barrels over its knee and squashing silver dollars in its powerful grip beyond the ability of the mint to recognize them.

And why should the press want to gnaw its fingernails while it steers the country into a starvation period? Will it be assumed that it became so attached to red ink in 1932, '33 and '34 it wants again to write its records in that fluid?

Can anything compare with the absurdity of political charges?

Verily Mr. Ripley is overlooking a great bet.

Opinions Of Others

CHALK UP ONE FOR TRADITION

Remember the Amish and Mennonite farmers in Lancaster county, Pa., who got themselves talked about last year because they insisted they didn't want the federal government to give them a large grant to be used in building a modern school building for their children? Well, it seems the determined philanthropists at Washington couldn't believe any one really could be serious in turning down a government handout, so the $112,000 school was built in spite of the protests.

But the simple farm folk got the best of the argument just the same. When the school opened last month thirty of their children who were expected to attend it stayed away. And last week a half dozen of the parents called on Pennsylvania's Gov. Earle and urged him to reopen the ten little red school houses the PWA school replaced. They pointed out that their traditional religious beliefs were involved. The governor, not unimpressed of the fact that there are 250,000 Amish and Mennonites in the state, complied with the request. The children will go back to their old schools, which will be maintained at state expense, for something like $6,000 a year.

"This is a pittance and for that amount of money I wouldn't interfere with religion," said the governor, a true guardian of the constitutional liberties and no piker with the taxpayers' money.

Thus does the New Deal give way to the old order on at least one front. It is but a sample of what national planners would encounter if they tried a thorough job of remodeling on the country without taking the infinite variety of human tastes and convictions into consideration.—Cedar Rapids Gazette.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS (Of Various & Assorted Sizes)

I resolve to quit trying to take all the praise, to escape all the blame, and to cease trying to build myself up as the hero of the masses when what the country needs is a little sober reflection on my part without regard for my personal desire to be boss.

—F. D. Roosevelt

We resolve to cease cashing in on the fact we are related to the president.

—The Roosevelt Family

I will spend a few weeks out of each month in Madison, at work, until January of 1939, at least. I will also not go running to Washington on mysterious missions every so often.

—P. F. LaFollette

I will give Jonah at least three days off each week, with pay, to rest, reflect, and write.

—The Boss

I will go back to the practice of law in Alabama, just to see what kind of a guy the president would appoint in my place.

—Justice Hugo Black

I resolve to quit sounding off during 1938 and, instead of keeping the people in a state of frazzled nerves, I will try to develop their potentialities in science, art, industry, agriculture and education. I will also lay off those of Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faith.

—Adolf Hitler

I resolve to remember in 1938 that I am a human being, after all, and that I won't be around forever.

—Benito Mussolini

We resolve to take back from the army the power to run our nation and, if we must fight a war, we will declare it formally and behave accordingly.

—The Japanese Empire

We will refuse to let ourselves get too worked up about what the Japanese army does.

—The People of the United States

We promise to provide enough in the way of bright material so that Post-Mortem will be great stuff in 1938 and so that, some day, it may be possible to issue a pocket-size yearbook with the best stuff we have written during the year.

—The Contributors

I resolve not to make any resolutions for 1938 so far as the column is concerned. Flexibility at any cost is my motto.

SUN AND AIR

Any one who has observed children and adults under open air sun bath treatment for various forms of tuberculosis of bone, spine, joint, etc., will have been impressed by the fine, soft texture of the skin that has become tanned mahogany under the carefully supervised exposure. One who visits such an institution on a cold winter day will be impressed also by the comfort such patients feel during exposure to air or sun and by the actual warmth of their skin to the touch of the skeptical investigator.

I am not constitutionally opposed to soap and water bathing. Frankly I relapse to it now and then myself. But that is chiefly because of my moral cowardice—I'm afraid to go as near naked as I would like, lest—well, I'm a nut now in the estimation of too many old-fashioned folk to whom any change or new idea is "frankish" or "crazy" or "a fad."

After all, soap and water is the least injurious application or agent for the removal of grime, soil, grease or filth from the skin. Soap and water is the most efficient and safest disinfectant for the skin, especially for the hands. If I had my way no person or firm could obtain a license to sell or serve food to be consumed on the premises until he or it had provided satisfactory facilities for washing the hands; facets, as individual towels or other sanitary means of drying the hands. No lavatories having old-fashioned hand faucets would pass inspection. Hand faucets are relics of the horse and buggy era. Likewise the door of the lavatory should have no latch or handle or knob the patron must touch, but should open by release of a foot latch or by a kick.

Ben Franklin enjoyed an air bath of two hours duration every morning while he wrote or read in his room. People who can combine such a daily air-bath with a sun-bath are fortunate. In the southwest this is a year-around possibility. In the north and east it is comfortable only thru the summer season. Some modern homes, however, are equipped with a roof solarium where members of the family may enjoy their sunbaths in privacy and comfort, even in the winter on sunny days protected from the wind. Such a roof solarium need not be an expensive affair. A space as small as 8 by 8 feet in the attic will suffice. For colder climates this may have a sliding ceiling of special glass which permits the ultraviolet rays of sunlight or skylight to enter. Of course, ordinary glass excludes the desirable ultraviolet rays. Incidentally, daily exposure of the naked body to sunshine is most essential for the young infant, next for the growing child, then for the youth or young adult, least essential for old folk. Just the same, old folk never know the manifold benefits of sunlight on naked skin until they try it daily for a few months. It helps to preserve youth or postpone the "cold graduations of decay."

Your Birthday

"CAPRICORN"

If December 31 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:45 to 11:45 a. m.; from 1:45 to 3:45 p. m.; and from 7:45 to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:15 to 9:45 a. m. from 5:45 to 7:45 p. m., and from 9:45 to 11:45 p. m.

A spirit of contrariness, may afflict a good many people this day, those with whom they come in contact. Any form of stubbornness will be dangerous to indulge in. It will be a good policy to stand shoulder to shoulder with those whose interests are similar to your own. Simplicity will have a strong appeal, whereas anything bordering upon the bombastic, pedantic, flashy or over-dressed might have just the opposite effect. Any business plan that is in the course of preparation this day is apt to succeed. Auspicious conditions prevail for mapping out, organizing, or systematizing details relating to commercial enterprises. Married and engaged couples, as well as those in love, must be careful what promises they make this day because they will be expected to keep them, and any excuse offered later on, for failing to do so, is not likely to be accepted.

If a woman and December 31 is your birthday, you should be a very agreeable companion. You probably love to indulge in day dreams, especially of a sentimental nature. You are considerate of the feelings and desires of other people, and expect, most likely, to be accorded a great amount of attention yourself, in return. If some pet ambition spurs you on, a brilliant achievement is apt to be the result. You ought to have an excellent memory, particularly for faces and, perhaps, for names. Through radio work, the stage, concert platform, selling, writing or interior decorating you might win both a name and wealth. In selecting a husband you apparently will display excellent taste and good judgment.

The child born on December 31, usually more than fulfills his parents' fondest hopes. As a rule mentally, physically and morally sound, it frequently manifests early in its

Night Driving
Thanks for the article on the use of vitamin A to help night driving. How many units of vitamin A should one take a day, and for how long, to make a thoro test? (J. H. S.)

Answer—In my opinion, and the experience of Dr. W. R. Aykroyd, author of "Vitamins and Other Dietary Essentials" (Heinemann, London) one tablespoonful of cod liver oil should make you able to see better the following night. A tablespoonful of cod liver oil contains about 80,000 units of the apocryphal vitamin A. An equivalent dose may be taken in the form of a small capsule of carotene (provitamin A). If you wish to make a thoro test, take 100,000 units of vitamin A daily for a week or ten days. The effect on your ability to drive against opposing headlights will be evident within the week.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—So much storm and strife has arisen against the Ludlow "vote us out of war" bill that it is surprising to many here that enough members of the house were found to petition it out of committee for a vote.

Alf M. Landon, the President, Secretary of State Hull and flots full of members of congress have denounced the proposal as unworkable and dangerous. Nevertheless the house is committed now to bringing it up for debate.

Representative Ludlow, an Indiana member, couched his plan in the form of a proposed amendment to the constitution which would take away from congress the right to declare war. If the amendment should go into effect, war could not be declared except upon direct vote of the people. An exception is that war could be declared by congress "in the event of an invasion of the United States or its territorial possessions and attack upon its citizens residing therein."

The Proposal
That part of the proposed amendment was buttressed by addition of a section paralleling the American Legion program for drafting business and industry as well as manpower in time of war.

It states:
"Whenever war is declared the President shall immediately conscript and take over for use by the government all the public and private war producing yards, factories and supplies, fixing the compensation for private properties temporarily employed for war purposes at a rate not in excess of four per cent, based on tax values assessed in the year preceding the war."

But the meat of the proposal is found in the last section, which (except in event of actual invasion) requires a popular vote on the question:

"Shall the United States declare war on—?"

The blank, of course, would be filled out with the name of some nation against whom we might develop a grudge, say England, Japan, or Nicaragua.

One senatorial critic of the proposal pointed out that the idea is based on two moot premises:

First, that the President, his cabinet, and congress are conspiring to get the United States into war in spite of the will of the people, or that some malignant group of international bankers and munitions makers" has the President and congress under its thumb and is pushing the nation willy-nilly into war.

Second, that the people at large are calmer in time of international crisis than their informed public officials.

An Example

Ludlow argues that under the pressure of propaganda "members of congress are likely to crack under the strain and vote for war when they would not want to do so."

One of the fancy modern possibilities that might develop if such a war referendum were attempted has already been demonstrated in Europe. There Italy has broadcast propaganda directed to Arabs and other Moslems now under British suzerainty, causing England no end of anxiety and trouble.

Undoubtedly the same situation could arise in the United States in event the people were asked to vote say two to ten days from now, on a question of going to war. The air could be flooded by propaganda from the nation affected, as well as from the pressure groups which Mr. Ludlow said would like to incite the country to war as a means of creating big profits for international bankers and munitions makers."

MAILING TAX NOTICE

Editor Post-Crescent—I am calling to your attention, the article in Tuesday's paper, where Joseph W. Kox, city treasurer announced who paid his taxes first. This little presentation is getting to be a hobby each year and it is just right to make it such, and I give our treasurer credit for doing so but we must have an equal chance on this matter, so it can be accomplished fairly. Now I get my mail at 8 o'clock in the morning or a little before and so did not receive my tax notice until yesterday and I paid my taxes two hours later, after I received it, so what chance did I have to pay it sooner? Now Mr. Kox must have mailed his notices after our mail carrier went out to deliver his mail. This was on Monday mind you and so others got their mail on that same day, but I did not, or else it was a slip up in getting my mail out from the post office. So outside of this little story there was no harm done to any one.

Kaws Will Meet Alumni Quintet In Game Tonight

Grads Favored to Defeat High School Varsity Team

Kaukauna—Basketball fans will view the highlight of the holiday season tonight at the high school gymnasium when Coach Paul E. Little's cagers clash with an alumni quintet. The contest, scheduled for 8 o'clock, will be preceded by a preliminary between the Mellow Brews of the city league and an outside team. This game will begin at 7 o'clock.

The alumni will go into the game favorites over the high school five. A squad of at least 15 men will be ready to play, with capable substitutes available for every position.

All of the alumni have played basketball since their high school days, either on college teams or in the city league here. Robert Bantz and George Hatchell, of last year's high school five, are on the Lake Forest College freshman five, with Karl Towles, former high school player, also from Lake Forest, scheduled to play. Art Koehnke, Ves Hanby, Jerome Parman and Robert Stanelle, all of last year's squad, will get into the game. Alvin McCormick, of the Jordan College squad, will appear at a forward berth.

Koch at Center

Claire Koch, star center of the Gustmans, city league champions, will be a problem to the Kaws, as will Art Sager, high scoring guard of the same team. Kenneth and Jerry Vika, both among the leading scorers of the city league, will test the Kaws guards.

Don Dix, Pantry Lunch forward, who has averaged more than eight points a game this year, will attempt to continue against the high schoolers.

Other players who will see action are Roman Berg, Greenwoods forward, Ross Farwell, Pantry Lunch captain, and Myron Ester.

Little will present the same lineup which has taken the floor in each of the Kaws' games this season. Cliff Vaneehoven, the team's leading pointmaker, will be at one of the forward posts, and Bill Peterson, second-high point man, at the other. Bill Alger, freshman center, Carl Giordana, freshman guard, and Leonard Lambie, another guard, are the other starters.

Railroad Employee Retires After 45 Years of Service

Herman Paschen Receives Watch as Gift of Car Department

Kaukauna—A career of 45 years of service with the Chicago and North Western railroad ended this month when Herman Paschen, 64, 208 Sixth street, was retired on pension.

At the age of 19 Mr. Paschen began his railroad duties, in 1892, with the Milwaukee, Lake Shore and Western railway, later purchased by the North Western. His first task, as a painter, was to see that the paint shop was clean and well heated at all times.

A short time later he became a regular painter, working on the coaches, box cars and engines that were painted at the Kaukauna shop. He was the only painter in the shops here the last two years in which the car department was operated. After 1931 he worked in the paint shop in Green Bay.

Mr. Paschen was presented, upon his retirement, with a gold watch, a gift of the car department of the Green Bay shops of the railroad. He is a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America, Local No. 445.

Born in Neenah, Nov. 23, 1873, he moved when 19 to Kaukauna. He has eight children, five daughters, Mrs. Albert Reinholz, Mrs. Victor Lange, Mrs. Otto Dreger, Mrs. Norman Lange and Irene, all of Kaukauna; and three sons, Herbert, Appleton, Walter and Raymond, Kaukauna.

Mr. Paschen's most prized possession is a time book carrying the names of all his fellow workers during his service with the Kaukauna shops. During the peak of the railroad business in Kaukauna 25 men were employed in the paint department, Paschen said.

A life of leisure is Mr. Paschen's only plan for the future.

The petition reads, "We, the undersigned citizens of the United States, call upon the Congress and the President to adopt and apply policies designed to keep America out of war and supported by a national defense program adequate for the protection of our country and its people."

Big Falls Bang Plan Is Favored

Closed Institution May be Made Station of Manawa Bank

Manawa—Following the closing of the doors of the Big Falls State bank last week upon recommendation of the state banking department, a movement was started by business men and bank directors of that village to have the Big Falls institution operate as a paying and receiving station under the Farmers State bank of Manawa.

A representative group of Big Falls residents met with directors of the Manawa bank last week and a favorable decision for the proposal was reached. The state banking commission has also approved the plan and the final decision rests with federal agencies who guarantee bank deposits.

The reason for closing the Big Falls State bank, it was said, grew out of a decrease in business transactions during the last year to such an extent that a continuance of the institution was not warranted. The bank has a good financial standing and depositors will lose nothing through the closing order. Funds on deposit at the time the doors were closed are being released this week.

Classes in New Menasha School To Begin Jan. 10

Senior High School Students Will Have Extra Week of Vacation

Menasha — Classes in the new Menasha high school building will open Monday, Jan. 10, according to F. B. Younger, superintendent of schools. While the new school building is being prepared, the high school classes will resume work next Monday as originally scheduled, senior high school students will have an additional week of vacation. The grades and junior highs will hold their classes Monday in the various grade school buildings of the city.

The board of education made an inspection trip through the new building on Tuesday, and while classes could start on next Tuesday as originally planned, there is still some final cleaning and small work which would interfere with classes.

Senior high school teachers will return next week and will have Thursday and Friday in which to get settled in their new rooms. If classes opened Tuesday, this work would have to be done while school was in session and the board felt that full-time resumption on Jan. 10 without delays would more than make up for time lost next week.

While many of the rooms are practically ready, some clocks must still be installed, equipment set up and final cleaning completed. When school opens a week from Monday, the workmen will have completed both the vocational and academic sections. Work on the gymnasium and auditorium which will go on will not interfere with classes.

Local Government Units Inefficient, Rotary Club Told

Structure Essentially Same As Century Ago, Professor Says

Neenah — Failure of local government to successfully meet the needs of the people persistently gnaws at the foundations of democracy, M. G. Toepel, professor in the social science department of the University of Wisconsin, told Neenah Rotarians at a noon meeting today at the Valley Inn.

Mr. Toepel is a former Neenah resident, a graduate of Neenah High school and former member of the high school teaching staff. He is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gust Toepel, 557 Oak street, during the Christmas vacation.

"If the existing government does not meet the needs of the people, the way is opened to 'boss rule,' the university instructor continued. And he added that it is a sad state of affairs when the so-called progressive state of Wisconsin permits a system of government founded by the Pilgrim fathers and New York Dutchmen of the seventeenth century to prevent the proper development of the essential functions of local government in 1937.

Continuing his condemnation of local government in Wisconsin, Toepel said, "Since the formation days of the early decades of the nineteenth century the demands on local government have increased to meet the twentieth century needs, but the structure of these governments has remained essentially as it was a century ago."

To Many Units
"Out of the failure to adopt the structure and functions to the modern economy has developed inefficient and costly government," he contended. Far too many units exist, opportunities for mismanagement are widespread, functions are carried on by localities, the obsolete theory that anyone can hold a government job still persists, and the errors of the past have not taught us the need of planning for the future, according to the professor.

"The state constitution, rigid and antiquated statutes, uninformed and near sighted legislators, uninterested and untrained citizens permit these conditions to exist," Mr. Toepel said. He added that in isolated instances public forums or investigations, largely actuated by fiscal insolvency, have resulted in some actions, but despite this Wisconsin has fallen far behind the leading states in general and specific local reorganization.

The professor told the Rotarians that unless concerted pressure be brought to bear on the legislature or the electorate can be properly trained to force permissive legislation through their locality, no real hope for local government reform exists.

"Without prompt and comprehensive action, we must wait for the debacle when inefficiency, costliness and inability to cope with the problems will force the people to demand reform," he added.

Mr. Toepel concluded his talk by asking the Rotarians, "Do we need a Galveston flood, local bankruptcy, or the results of a grand jury investigation into local affairs before we in Wisconsin can appreciate the need for modernization of local government?"

Loyalists Leave Caves as Teruel Falls in Conflict

Madrid — Groups of Spanish government sympathizers who lived in the thousands of caves beneath Teruel during 17 months of insurgent occupation reached nearby villages today.

They emerged from their cavernous hideouts only upon order of government troops and learned that Teruel had fallen and they could be evacuated.

Other civilian refugees from the war-torn Aragon city told of risking their lives to keep in touch with developments on the government side of the civil war.

When insurgents seized the city in July, 1936, one of the first orders made possession of radios illegal. House to house searches were conducted and scores of radio sets were confiscated.

Government sympathizers, however, succeeded in hiding a few sets which served throughout the insurgent occupation to keep them in touch with Madrid communiques, official speeches and other war news.

Most of the sets were hidden deep in the caves which honeycomb the ground beneath the city. They were used only occasionally. Communiques were memorized and passed along by word of mouth after a man who copied extracts from a government address was found shot outside the city.

Captains August Eberlein, 74, and William Hooper, 62, will be pensioned Friday, the former having served exactly 40 years in the Neenah fire department and the latter having been a fireman here for 32 years.

Wednesday night, when the two men met to have their pictures taken, was one of the few times during the last 20 years they have had an opportunity to meet socially, despite the fact that they have been friends throughout their lifetime and have worked side by side in fighting Neenah's biggest as well as smallest conflagrations. But practically every morning during the last 20 years, during which they

Public Service Commissioners at John Doe Inquiry

Testify at Investigation of B. E. Buckman and Company Bankruptcy

Madison — (4)—The three members of the state public service commission, Chairman Fred S. Hunt, Robert Nixon and R. Floyd Green went before state investigators today to testify in the secret John Doe probe of the bankrupt B. E. Buckman and company, Madison investment firm.

It was the commission's recommendation that principal officers of the firm be prosecuted on charges of violating the state securities act, that brought about the investigation.

The hearing before Circuit Judge Robert S. Cowie, LaCrosse was resumed today after a recess. Indications were that it would end late this afternoon.

The public service commissioners walked into Judge Cowie's courtroom with Attorneys Lawrence J. Brody, LaCrosse and Bruno V. Bittker, Milwaukee, two who the special counsel appointed by Governor LaFollette.

Because of conflicting interests involving the Buckman case William H. Spohn, Madison, the third special counsel, and two other attorneys resigned from the Dane county tax review board.

Coming before the board soon is an appeal by William M. Dinneen, former secretary of the public service commission from a tax commission assessment of $75,000 against himself and his wife for alleged unreported income.

The assessments were made as a result of the Buckman company investigation. The others who resigned from the board were John T. Harrington, law partner of Carl N. Hill, and representatives of Buckman officers and Karl E. McMurray, partner of Howard L. Smith, one of the receivers of the Buckman company.

W. L. Ragatz, assessor of incomes was to recommend new appointees today.

Japanese Attacks On British Ships Called 'Mistake'

Note Says Tokio Has Dealt Properly With Responsible Officers

London—(AP)—Japan, in a note to Britain made public today, declared Japanese attacks on the gunboat Ladybird and other British ships in China waters were a mistake. But to insure against further incidents Japan has dealt properly with responsible military and naval officers on the ground that they failed to take full precautions. New orders have been given to Japanese forces, the note said, for the greatest possible care that attacks shall not be made upon the lives and property of British or other nationals.

The note was similar in content to the Japanese note to the United States on the sinking of the American gunboat Panay and three Standard Oil vessels.

The British foreign office released the explanation, in reply to British protests against such incidents, without any comment to indicate whether it was satisfactory. "Have Dealt Properly"

Of the British request for punishment of those responsible, the Japanese note said that the government. "In order to insure against the possibility of similar mistakes, have dealt properly according to law with the commanding and other military officers concerned, and with the commanding and other naval officers of the air squadrons responsible, on the ground that they failed to take full precautions." The disciplinary action was not detailed. A British seaman was killed and two wounded on Dec. 13 when the Ladybird was shelled at Wuhu. Four foreigners were injured fatally in bombing of the American Panay and the Standard Oil vessels, on Dec. 12. The British gunboat Bee also was attacked.

Explanation of the attacks in today's note followed closely the Japanese army version which the British government yesterday decided was not acceptable. The army version was that Japanese troops did not know the gunboats Ladybird and Bee were British when they were attacked.

The King of Egypt

Yesterday I spoke of going inside of a Mohammedan mosque. In that mosque I saw the tomb of King Fouad, who died in 1936.

When the king died, ambassadors and ministers of many countries sent flowers for his tomb—far more than enough to bury it.

King Farouk stepping from auto-motor.

For 40 days, sheiks took turns reciting the Koran in front of the tomb. They were praying for the soul of the dead king.

There are two kinds of sheiks in Egypt. First we have the widely-known leaders of desert tribes. They are for the most part Bedouins.

Another kind of sheik is a priest of the Moslem faith. He knows the Koran by heart, and often can sing or recite it in a rich musical voice.

The sheiks chosen to recite in front of the king's tomb had the best voices among all the Moslem priests of Egypt—or, at least, so I am told.

When King Fouad died, he left behind him a son, a 16-year-old boy who was at school in England.

This youth hurried back to his country, and now rules under the name of King Farouk. On his next birthday, he will be 18 years of age.

The other day I went to the central part of Cairo to change some British pounds into Egyptian money, and to visit a steamship agency.

While I was performing my errands, I saw crowds which had gathered on the sidewalks along-side the city's most important street.

"The king is coming!" I was told. "He is coming from Alexandria, and soon will reach the Cairo railway station."

Policemen were busy clearing the street, and people were told they must not walk from one side to the other. A layer of sand was spread over the pavements, for a stretch of perhaps two miles.

In a little while, mounted soldiers with long lances came riding past. They were the king's advance guards. The king, himself, passed in an open carriage. There was wild cheering, and he held up his hand in salute. He was smiling pleasantly when he passed the spot where I was standing.

Egyptians say their country became "really free this year." If that is true, it is the first time in more than 2,000 years. Egypt has been ruled by Greeks, Romans, Arabs and Turks (one after the other).

During the last century, Great Britain has had a good deal of control over it. Since the World War, the British have been giving up their power step by step.

Win Confidence of Child To Cement Relationships

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Shouldn't I know what my daughter is doing? Haven't I a right to know who is writing to her and what it is all about? I think it is my duty to know. Amn't I responsible? My eighteen-year-old daughter has left home because I opened her letters. I opened them because she would not tell me what was in them. I had to know. Is that any reason why a girl should leave home and disgrace her own mother before the village?"

That is a hard situation for mother and daughter, but the opened letter that brought on the crisis was not the cause. The cause lay far back, eighteen years back, in the relationship that was set up between mother and daughter during the daughter's infancy. That relationship blossomed into this hard situation. The mother is that many years too late to win the daughter's confidence.

To win a friend one must first be one. The element in motherhood that wins and holds the children through a lifetime is friendliness. The close intimacy of mother and baby must gradually merge into one that is somewhat further away, and yet equally as binding. As the child grows he grows away from his mother, and the wise mother, knowing that, holds him by keeping his friendship.

Friends know each other's feelings so well that they do not intrude upon them. They know each other's thoughts. They are in such close and affectionate sympathy that they rejoice or suffer together without one of them saying a word to the other. Friends learn to wait for each other's confidence, certain of it as they are of each other. They share life, and so double its meanings.

That relationship must be set before adolescence. It is not set in a day, by any one action, and certainly never by mandate. It is won by devoted day-by-day attention and understanding of the needs of a growing boy or girl. One of these needs, a primary need, is privacy, physical and spiritual.

The human soul has moments when it must be alone, when it must carry its joy or its grief in the solitude of its being. This is true of very little children. You have seen a child sitting apart, looking far away, by any one action, and certainly never by mandate. It is won by devoted day-by-day attention and understanding of the needs of a growing boy or girl. One of these needs, a primary need, is privacy, physical and spiritual.

Assures Young Man Right Girl Will Happen Along

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I go to a coal college where the boys outnumber the girls two to one, and the girls take advantage of their fewer number to demand an ultra time when the boys take them out. I see very little of the fairer sex as I am working my way through school and work in the oil fields during the summer. Are all girls that inaccessible everywhere? Some day I wish to have that cottage of which every man dreams. When I do, will I find a fair-looking and fairly intelligent girl to live in it with me, or do all girls demand a palace instead of a cottage? What are my chances? BOB.

DOROTHY DIX

Don't judge other girls by your snooty coeds. They are just affording you another illustration of the way the law of supply and demand works out. When there are more boys than girls, every girl is a belle and can be choosy and insist upon being taken to high-priced places of amusement. When the ratio of the sexes is reversed and girls are plentiful and boys are few, they are all praying the old maid's prayer: "Lord send me a man, any man."

You won't believe me, but I am telling you the truth, that it is your good fortune that in your school days you are out of the running with the girls. For one thing, it gives you a chance to put your mind on your books instead of women's looks. Hence you are able to get an education and that is something that will be to your gain as long as you live.

For another thing, it will keep you from getting into a messy love affair before you are old enough to know what you want in a wife, or have judgment enough to pick one out.

At your age every boy is in love with love and he imagines every girl who comes along is IT. Before he knows it he has told her so and, as some one has said, "tied a knot with his tongue that he can't untie with his teeth."

Almost in most coed institutions engagements are as contagious as the measles. They are an annual epidemic that runs through the school, with fatal results to thousands of young men who are forced into marriage before they are ready for it. This causes many other thousands of young men a pain in the neck and lots of worry before they wiggle out of an affair after they have gotten away from her and found out that she wasn't IT after all.

Wait until after you are through college and have a good job and have that cottage ready, and you won't have any difficulty in finding a wife to share it with you. By that time you will probably have enough sense to select the kind of a wife you need and want.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a girl 21 years old and training to be a nurse. I love my profession, but love a boy of my own age equally as well. As it is impossible to get married while in training we want to elope and keep it quiet until I graduate. The man has a good job as a salesman and is out of town most of the time. Being away so much I am afraid he might fall for some one else. If we were married he would be under an obligation and wouldn't have as much chance to go around as he does now. Will you please tell me just what to do. NURSE.

Answer: I don't think it is very square shooting for you to doublecross your hospital by marrying on the sly when you agreed not to marry while you were in training. So my advice to you is to either give up your training as a nurse, or put off the wedding until you can honorably marry.

There is just one thing in the world that keeps a man true to a woman and that is for him to prefer her to any other woman in the world. If your sweetheart doesn't feel that way about you, being married to you isn't going to hold him, as you will perceive if you will observe the number of philandering husbands.

Whether he travels or stays put doesn't make any difference. There

GOOD TASTE TODAY

BY EMILY POST

COCKTAILS

Dear Mrs. Post: Are cocktails never served at the table? I mean, is it an untasteful custom to serve them beforehand in the living room? So often people arrive at the table of the hour set for dinner and there is little time to serve cocktails and have much conversation in the living room, whereas if they had their cocktails at the dining table as a first course, I believe they would drink them faster so that dinner would not have to suffer.

Answer: When you are serving cocktails before dinner, you should always ask people for at least fifteen minutes before the hour at which dinner is to be served. That is, if you are having people for dinner at seven o'clock, prepare to have dinner announced at a quarter past seven. If your guests are the type who want more than one cocktail and talk for awhile beforehand, you would better allow half an hour before dinner. Or, if you have one cocktail apiece passed around on a tray and serve nothing with your cocktails, then dinner can be announced almost immediately—that is, in about five minutes. I've never heard of cocktails being served at the table, excepting in a restaurant. On the other hand, it must be remembered that cocktails have come into fashion within the very few last years. In fact, they are a remnant of prohibition. Before that they were served only in the host's own smoking room to the men. The rules of etiquette therefore are not definite. Since the repeal of prohibition, people take a much shorter time over their cocktails than they did five or six years ago, and in the average representative house one cocktail apiece is all that is proffered and very little to eat with them. A variety of appetizers is typical of late afternoon cocktail parties and not of the hour before lunch or dinner. You can of course serve as much as you like. A present day point to remember is that in really smart houses there are always some nonalcoholic, as well as alcoholic cocktails which were considered sufficient several years ago.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it necessary to answer an "at home" invitation? Answer: Answer an "at home" invitation only if the request for a reply is included in the wording of the invitation.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is there any rule for the type of card that is enclosed with a gift? And even if the rule is to enclose a visiting card, what is your opinion of the pretty little card printed especially for enclosing with gifts?

Answer: There is no rule. In other

Wife Wins Argument Over Hand

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The only point upon which my wife and I disagree is about which of us is the better bridge player. She maintains that she is marvelous, and I know that my own game is superb, so in the final analysis it comes down to a battle of adjectives. Of course, if my wife weren't so conceited it would be all right. It isn't enough for me to concede she plays a very decent game. O. no. She has the gall to argue with me over certain points that seem, from her superficial point of view, debatable. For example, she claims that my defense in the hand shown below was not the best possible. Lousy was the word she indecidentally used. I appeal to you to put her in her place, although heaven knows who is to keep her there!" The hand was:

Both sides vulnerable.

Prepare Carefully For Party

BY ELSIE PIERCE

Plenty of glamour and glitter is what you'll need for the big evening, for this has been the most glamorous season in a decade and New Year's Eve is the most important evening of them all.

You doubtless have, or have already had, an appointment at your favorite beauty salon. Because you want a good old-fashioned session with beauty and a try at a new wrinkle or two.

Put Up Your Hair To begin with, you ought to have a new hair-do. Put up your hair, pile the curls high, sweep up sides and top in pompadour fashion or in the big coils that are at once graceful and striking. It is quite the order of the day, or rather of the evening, to startle them with a totally new hair-do and a new you on this night of nights. You probably will arrange for both shampoo and setting at the salon, but in the event you shampoo your own hair, be sure it is a very thorough shampoo followed by a very careful rinsing. If you have time, give your hair an oil treatment before the shampoo.

Wear flowers, feathers, birds, jewels or a hair piece in your hair. Wear a veil if you are the veil type. Go frankly artificial and exotic if you dare, so long as you stay on beauty's side. Spray glittering jewelry color in your pompadour, if you like, just to pique their curiosity (although honestly if your hair is alive with natural color and highlights you don't need foreign sparkle).

Have a Facial

Have a facial if purse and time permit. Lie back in a downy chair. Ask your facial operator to keep the room or both as dark as possible and try to catch a quick nap. You'll feel doubly refreshed if you do this. Some of the beauty salons have a special service; a complimentary make-up for daytime or evening, whichever you prefer. You have your facial the day before the party, and come back the next afternoon for a professional make-up. It's very nice, and evening lights and make-up colors are taken into consideration.

Of course you'll have a manicure, too, with exciting nail polish, painting it off, leaving yourself a hand message with cream and hand lotion before retiring, and don a pair of old gloves.

Take out all your jewels and have them ready for the big evening! (Copyright, 1937) causing declarator to ruff high. Of course, my play didn't work. Declarator ruffed the heart jack, drew the clubs, knocked out my diamond ace, and finally lost only one club trick.

"I would like your judgment on my reasoning however. Of course, if by any remote chance I was wrong, you'd better not print this letter as it would only cause additional swelling in the already swollen heads of feminine players.

"Trusting yours,

Mr. R. R. W. Boston."

The last sentence of my correspondent's letter is hereby ignored. I refuse to stultify myself even in the name of sex loyalty.

Mr. R. R. W.'s play was exactly what his wife called it. Granting that he could not know who held the missing three of hearts, there still was no excuse for his laying down the jack. If declarator had another heart it hardly could escape. There was no suit in dummy upon which to throw it. East should have shifted to the club jack as fast as he could get the card out.

Incidentally the hand is much more interesting from declarator's angle than from the defender's. Declarator made a futile and fatal play when he covered the heart queen. He should not have covered and then no argument could have arisen from the defenders. Failure to cover would render the defenders helpless. If East overtook with the ace and shifted to the club jack, declarator could discard a losing club on the established heart king. Whereas, if the heart queen were permitted to hold, declarator could not cash the heart king, seeking to hypnotize Ann, he puts Helen Broderick in a coma instead.

Ann's Last With Gene

"She's Got Everything" marks the final teaming of Ann Sothern and Gene Raymond, the latter now leaving RKO for Paramount where he began. The farewell fling deals with the scheme of a flock of creditors of penniless Annie to snare her rich husband, named Raymond, so she'll be able to pay them off. Ski Suits Are Practical, Accessories Giddy

This wool snow-cloth ski suit of black and white is accented by flame-colored knitted wool gloves. Note the smart buckle and strap closing on the jacket and the wide lapels in contrasting color.

No Nonsense About This Year's Winter Sports Wear

BY ADELAIDE KERR

NEW YORK (P)—The ski suits for this winter's sports are designed with no nonsense.

They are streamlined, cut for action and pruned of the "ginger bread" that used to clutter snow suits before young America took its winter sports seriously. By way of balancing matters, however, mittens, scarfs and other accessories are as gay and giddy as a peasant roundelay.

More than half the ski suits are made of navy blue wool. Veteran skiers, more interested in reaching the end of a run right side up than in being snow-slope fashion plates, prefer classic gabardine, because it is sturdy, warm, lightweight and it tailors trimly. Many young bloods like the heavier snow cloth (wool, wave somewhat resembles a blotter) because it is newer and is often made up in some striking combination of colors.

Trousers are slimmer and cut in three lengths — ankle, plus — four and midway. Plus-fours are less popular, though, because they are less becoming. The slim jackets are equipped with some smooth tricks in slide-fastener closing — not gaily decorated as trims, but concealed under bands and laps which make them wind-proof and snow-proof.

Mittens Step Out

Heavy knitted wool mittens and socks in the gayest peasant patterns of many a year go with some of them. Others step out with caps and gloves knitted of bright wool in one color and finished with lacings and tassels in two other brilliant shades. They are the champagne for those strictly snow-business suits.

Wool sweaters or shirts in some bright hue to match the accessories are worn under most of the suits. A pliable elasticized girdle, long woolen underwear, long wool stockings and heavy socks to wear over them complete the list. Something novel and practical is an entire suit of chamomile underwear, which is lightweight and said to be very warm.

The well dressed onlooker has not been forgotten in winter sports clothes. Plaid blanket-cloth coats bordered with fringe and light colored blanket-cloth swaggar coats trimmed with striped bands have been designed for her to wear over her tailored flannels and tweeds.

Municipalities of State Continue War on Pollution

Substantial Progress Made In 1937, Sanitary Engineer Reports

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Development of municipal sanitation facilities throughout Wisconsin, which was stepped up to an unprecedented rate in 1937 as the result of the financial inducements offered by the national government, continued at an encouraging rate during 1937, L. F. Warrick, state chief sanitary engineer, reported today.

During the first nine months of the year the required state approval was given to the technical plans for waterworks developments in 50 municipalities, sewerage and sewage treatment developments in 77 municipalities and miscellaneous sanitation developments in 13 municipalities, according to Warrick. "In most cases," Warrick observed,

"these improvements have more than a local significance in that they abate water pollution which may have made itself felt for long distances from the point at which domestic or industrial wastes were discharged."

"This has been particularly true of our rivers, many of which in the past have suffered an unnatural burden of pollution so heavy as to destroy fish life as well as to render the waterways a menace to public health and unfit for recreational purposes," Warrick and the state committee on water pollution have been studying the killing of fish in the lower Fox River during the last year.

Paper Industry Helps
During the last year also special studies of the digestion of fibrous wastes with domestic sewage solids have been begun by that committee, with the aid of the Wisconsin pulp and paper industries.

Improvements by municipalities in sewerage and sewage treatment systems during 1937 included, according to Warrick's report, Algoma, Appleton, Clintonville, De Pere, Green Bay, Kaukauna, Neenah and Menasha, Oshkosh and Waupaca.

In his annual report to the state board of health Warrick points out that "in at least one district of the state, namely the lower Fox River Valley, it has been found that the drinking water supplies contain fluorine in sufficient quantities to cause a condition of the teeth known as mottled enamel, and studies aimed at remedying this situation have been launched. To date it has been indicated that it will be impractical to exclude enough fluorine by sealing or well casing to prevent mottled enamel, but some promise is shown that chemical treatment of the water may eventually solve the problem."

Rev. and Mrs. A. F. Grollmus and daughter.
Mrs. A. F. Grollmus, Mrs. Gust Sedo and Mrs. Harvey Weishoff, who are in charge of the cradle roll of St. John Evangelical church, entertained 15 babies and their mothers Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edwin Sassman.

The babies exchanged gifts and a lunch was served.
Daryl and Veryl Sievert submitted to a tonsilectomy Tuesday morning at Bellin Memorial hospital, Green Bay.

Says Government May Release More Of Its Idle Gold

Washington—(P)—Senator Thomas (D-Okla.) said yesterday he had "positive information" that federal fiscal authorities were discussing the possibility of using more of the government's idle gold.

"The veteran 'easy money' advocate said part of the 'sterilized' millions might be brought out as an ordinary credit move to improve business, or used later in direct payment of federal relief bills. The treasury released $300,000,000 of sterilized gold on Sept. 12 and used it to retire government securities. Within the last two months it sold $45,000,000 more to France and England. It has $1,277,000,000 remaining.

Representative Bollau (P-Wis.) said the president's estimate of federal relief requirements next March probably would determine the action on gold.

"We'll need more money than anyone now realizes," he said, adding that "congress will vote no more taxes, government spending cannot stop, and the only thing to do is use this gold which the government already owns."

Best Cough Remedy Is Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.

To get the quickest relief from coughs due to colds, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll never use any other kind of cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed. Then get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any drug store. This is a concentrate compound of Norway Pine, famous for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really better medicine than you could buy ready-made for four times the money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

And for quick, blessed relief, it has no equal. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

East, West Squads Work to Perfect Timing of Plays

Conclude Heavy Practice For Shrine Charity Battle

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Football stars of the east and west put finishing touches today on offensive plays for the Shrine charity game here Saturday.

The teams concluded heavy practice yesterday under the first clear sky in a week, and now it's just a matter of perfecting timing.

Andy Kerr of Colgate, co-coach of the East with Bernie Bierman of Minnesota, said his players were "much further advanced than last year because we have had time to put in more plays and stress the timing attack."

Each team is allowed 10 days practice.

Aerial Attack

Coaches Orin "Babe" Hollingsberg of Washington State and Lawrence "Bill" Jones of Nebraska expressed the same opinion about their West team, which has been working on an aerial attack featuring the Arkansas passing duo of quarterback Dwight Sloan and end Jim Benton.

Beating here favored the East today at 10 to 8. What edge the easterners may have was considered to be mainly in the line, which will have such stalwarts as Fordham's All-America tackle, Ed Franco, and center Alexander Wojciechowski; the Ohio State guard, Gus Zarnas; and North Carolina's great end, Andy Bersbach.

The West coaches wouldn't venture a starting lineup.

Kerr and Bierman penciled a tentative opening East eleven on the emphatic condition changes might be made.

It had Charles Sweeney of Notre Dame and Frank Souchak of Pittsburgh at ends; Al Babarsky and Franco both of Fordham at tackles; Joe Drulis of Temple and Zarnas at guards and Wojciechowski, center; Johnnie Michelson of Pittsburgh, quarterback; Cecil Bell of Purdue at left half; Andy Farkas of Detroit right half and Corby Davis of Indiana at fullback.

Terrors Oppose Antigo Tonight

Entire Squad Making Trip Into Wisconsin Riv- er Valley

Appleton High school basketball team left this afternoon for Antigo for a non-conference contest with Coach Joseph Shields hobbling around on crutches with a smashed toe. Joe dropped a bowling ball last night at the Arcade alleys and his toe was injured.

All members of the first squad are making the trip because the Terror mentor isn't so sure what combination is the best. He has been shifting players for the last two weeks and now wants to see what they'll do under fire. The win at Sheboygan in conference play before the holidays, with the veteran member of the squad on the bench, prompted Shields to try his youngsters.

Nothing is known of the strength of the Antigo club. It competes in the Wisconsin River Valley conference where competition is keen but it isn't one of the leaders.

After tonight's game the Terrors will prepare for Tuesday's invasion of the Neenah High school gym for the only contest scheduled with Ole Jorgensen's proteges.

Two Indiana Squads Win on Pacific Coast

Los Angeles—(AP)—Purdue university defeated the University of California at Los Angeles 63 to 39, here last night, and the University of Indiana won from the University of Southern California 42 to 39, in a double-header basketball contest.

The Indiana teams won from their California opponents last night. Purdue defeated Southern California 49 to 43, and Indiana university beating U.C.L.A. 42 to 33.

Los Angeles to be Scene Of Lewis-Rosenbloom Bout

NEW YORK—(AP)—How come Dizzy Dean's famous balk which got him into a row with President Ford Frick and made headlines all over the country, didn't get into the Los Angeles National League averages? .. Los Angeles has taken a January fight between John Henry Lewis and Maxie Rosenberg away from St. Louis and Chicago. Dear old Dartmouth will announce a 150-pound football team any day now with Ed Jeremiah, hockey coach, in charge. .. Joe Louis' movie was previewed by fight writers here yesterday. .. Two stars.

Football tip: Four of the ten coaches who'll have teams in "Bowl" games Saturday use the old Knute Rockne system. .. Now that Art Gupe has become freshman football and basketball coach at Marquette his mother has released him from such duties as baking, sewing and making the beds. .. Congratulations, Butch. REAR FOOTBALL players, they say, are born.

If so, date this saga of the nation's current football idol back to March 17, 1914. On that day, in a Bell county farm deep in Texas, a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Baugh—a little fellow they christened Sam Adrian. It was a nice name—one the sports writers 20 years later were to twist into Slingin' Sam, Sweet Slinger, etc.

Tiny hands flailed around in that farmhouse cradle, hands that later were to develop into ham-like hooks that tossed footballs like they had never been tossed. At just about the time Harold (Red) Grange left his Wheaton ice wagon and started an incredible football career at Illinois, Sammy Baugh was having his first look at a football—one of those lightweight, imitation-leather balls you pick up at a notions counter.

The Baughs moved into Temple, Texas, where Sammy started to grade school and football player was in the making.

Third-graders don't have organized grid leagues, but Sammy and his pals cleared off a vacant lot and got hold of a battered old football and "chose up sides."

"I sort of took a liking to passing back in those kid days and have been working on it since," draws Baugh. "I started as an end on the Temple high school team."

"One day I threw some passes—and then I played in the backfield."

"Did Everything Right"

Only one year did Sammy play at Temple high before his family moved on to Sweetwater in West Texas.

Catch Ed Henning put Baugh into his Sweetwater backfield "because he was a steady plunger; a boy who did everything right. And believe me he could pass and kick them."

After his last high school football season, Sammy turned to baseball. He did some third-basing for an Abilene team and Coach Leo (Dutch) Meyer of Texas Christian, varsity baseball mentor and freshman football coach, took his T.C.U. Horned Frogs out to play the Abilene nine.

Meyer, after the baseball series, returned to Fort Worth and told Francis Schmidt, then varsity football coach, that he had seen "a rare baseball player" out at Abilene.

"He's this kid Baugh from Sweetwater, understand he also plays football and basketball. Why he's got the sweetest muscular coordination for a kid his age I've ever seen. I don't know what he's done in football, but he could certainly play on my baseball team."

Schmidt hadn't seen Baugh and nothing was done.

T.C.U. Second Choice

Meanwhile a University of Texas alumnus persuaded Baugh to try Texas, chiefly because he wanted him to play third base under the veteran diamond coach, "Uncle Billy" Ditch.

Baugh went to Austin and talked things over with "Uncle Billy."

There was a hitch in plans however, and Baugh didn't go to Texas. Shortage of student jobs, or something like that.

"Uncle Billy," the grand old man of college baseball, did just what he has done for many other boys. He loaned Sammy Baugh his money to travel on to Fort Worth and enroll at Texas Christian university.

Unknown to a man who had spent more than a score of years developing great athletes for the University of Texas sent along to a rival Southwest conference institution one of the greatest college athletes of all times.

Call it a boner if you wish—down here in Texas they set it up as just another act of kindness by a silver-haired fine old man.

(Tomorrow: Sammy Baugh, the "unknown" enters into a collegiate career finally crowned by thunderous acclaim as the greatest of all forward passers.)

At the age of 6, Slingin' Sam Baugh started throwing a football through an auto tire, in this manner. . .

Thereby developing a grip that was good for touchdowns passes from the time Baugh was in the third grade. . .

And that brought fame when he wore T.C.U.'s uniform, and passed for 39 touchdowns in three varsity years.

Badger Guard Out Of Lineup for Tilt Against Missouri

Wisconsin Cagers Get Double Workout for New Year's Eve Game

MADISON—(AP)—The University of Wisconsin basketball team will usher out the old year and welcome in the new with a basketball game. The Badgers meet a strong Missouri university quintet on New Year's eve at the field-house here.

Coach Harold Foster, in an attempt to prime his Badgers to peak form gave them a double workout yesterday, with drills in the morning and afternoon.

The condition of Lee Mitchell, veteran guard from Monroe was somewhat improved, but it is almost a certainty the bulky 200-pounder will be missing from the lineup tomorrow. Yesterday he threw a few free throws but was unable to run.

Tentative Lineup

Out-of-bounds plays, and a long offensive and defensive scrimmage featured the workouts. Foster plans to start the same five he has used in every previous game, with the exception, of course, of Mitchell's guard spot. Charles Jones will be at center with Howard Powell and George Rooney, forwards and Manie Frey at one guard. Ernie Davis will undoubtedly get the starting call at the vacated guard position.

The lone basketball who has failed to report after the Christmas holidays was forward Andy Smith, of Wausau.

Coach Foster does not consider the Tigers a "set-up." Two of Coach George Edwards' last year varsity men are not even on the traveling squad this season, being pushed out in the cold by flashy sophomores.

The Missouri outfit has ten members, six of them first year men. They play Michigan State tonight on the Spartan floor. The Badgers will tangle with Michigan State here Feb. 5.

Menasha Cagers Stop Fox River Winning Streak

Pankratz Fuels Down Appleton Quint After 22 Wins in Row

THE winning streak of Fox River Paper company cagers was broken at 22 games by the Pankratz Fuels of Menasha in a close game at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday night which ended 23-20. Fox River hadn't lost a game since Feb. 23, 1937, when it was defeated in the state tournament and has won 56 of the last 58 games.

The Pankratz quint displayed a sterling defensive game which bothered the Fox River team all through the first quarter ended 8 to 4 in favor of Fox River. Knoll and Barnes counted for the Menashas in the second quarter while Fox River scored three points on free throws and trailed 12 to 11 at half-time.

Pankratz cagers clung to their slim lead in the last half. Eddie Krause plunked two baskets in the first half but the four points were offset by opponent's spurts.

Lash Voted 'Outstanding Athlete' of Big 10 Group

BY WILLIAM WEEKES CHICAGO

(AP)—The Big Ten's "outstanding athlete" title for 1937 belongs to Donald R. Lash, Indiana's smasher, of distance running records—by as far as some of the bigger margins he established in cinderpath triumphs.

The lightfooted Hoosier who ran a world record 8:58 two miles at Boston last February, dominated Big Ten mile and two mile fields outdoors for three years, along with supplying a full share of thrills for Drake and Pennsylvania relay crowds, galloped off with the sixth annual Associated Press poll of coaches and sportswriters, by a score of 67 points, to 37 for a fellow Hoosier, fullback Corby Davis.

John (Jake) Townsend, an Indianapolis boy who operates for Michigan in basketball and track, was third with 19 points.

Career Interrupted

Lash was interrupted shortly after his graduation from Indiana last June by an appendectomy, was the first choice of 17 of the 41 voters. Five picked him second and six made him third choice. Scoring was on the basis of three points for a first choice, two for a second and one for third. Davis collected seven firsts, five seconds and six thirds, while Townsend was tops with three voters, ran second on four ballots and third on two.

The brilliant Indiana star followed Duane Purvis of Purdue, football and track ace, who won the honor in 1935, John Jacob (Jay) Berwanger, Chicago's famous "one-man" football and track team who won in 1934 and 1935, and Ohio State's matchless Jesse Owens, holder of world broad jumping, sprinting and hurdling marks, last year's choice.

Cecil Isbell, Purdue's football stalwart, and Louis Boudreau, Illinois basketball and baseball star, shared fourth place at 16 points; Jewell Young, Purdue's holder of the Big Ten individual basketball scoring record, had 15 for sixth, and points gave Jim McDonald, Ohio State gridiron and basketball ace, the next position.

Others receiving support were: Vernon Huffman, Bob Haak and George Miller, Indiana; Bill Watson, Bob Osgood, Bill Barclay and Tom Haynie, Michigan; Dave Albritton, Mel Walker and Johnny "Ohio" Tate; Ray King, Martin Rolak and Rudy Gorman, Minnesota; Nile Kinnick and Bob Lanoski, Iowa; Charles Fenske and Howie Weiss, Wisconsin; Bob Fitzgerald, Chicago; Harry Combes, Illinois; and Bob Volts, Northwest.

Little 9 Eastern Division Leaders to Clash Tonight

Kimberly—The Kimberly High school five will be after the third win in a row this evening when it meets Denmark at the high school gymnasium in a Little Nine conference game. The teams are tied for first place in the Eastern division.

In the two games won by Kimberly it defeated Seymour and Hilbert by wide margins. Denmark also won from Hilbert by a one-sided score and walloped Redskinsville, 37 to 15.

Undoubtedly Coach Hamann will stack his regulars against the visitors. It was Krueger, Weyerberg, Behrendt, Van Dyck, Fieweger, Vanden Boogaard, La Berge and Parent who so proudly defeated St. John's squad, Little Chute, to celebrate the opening of the new gymnasium last month.

Denmark's lineup will include Scheels, Kellner, Dimmer and Peterson, forwards; Rasmussen and Kemfert, centers; Mathis, Lodi and Kriwanek, guards.

The Papermakers have been out each afternoon during the holiday vacation. Next week they are scheduled to play at Brillion.

America OUT-OF-DOORS SHOOT SKEET WITH A LITTLE PRACTICE

By Jimmy Robinson
SKEET, which is the fastest growing shooting sport, is easy to learn. It doesn't take years of practice like baseball, hockey, lacrosse or billiards. Anyone who can handle a shotgun and has fairly good eyesight can learn to shoot skeet in a few days. After a few rounds at the traps.

Last winter one of the shooters in the California State Skeet Club who was breaking around 95 per cent, and the boys told me that he Robinson has been shooting but five months. At the National Skeet Shoot at St. Louis last year, young Dick Shaughnessy of Boston, 14 years old, shattered 248 out of a possible 250 to win the Individual Championship. Dick had been shooting about two years previous to winning the championship. Young Billy Clayton of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, 115 pounds with his batrobe and slippers, won the winter series. I consider the greatest all-around shot in skeet. Last year at St. Louis he won the All-Around Championship and his average on registered skeet targets reads over 99 per cent this year. Then, we'll take some of the grandfathers of skeet.

Under the late H. B. Joy, of Detroit, former President of the A. S. U., who broke the world's record a few years ago with a 20 gauge. He had a long run of well over 100 straight. Mr. Joy was well over the 75 year mark, but he broke skeet targets with ease. I could mention a dozen and one cases, similar to that of Mr. Joy.

Today, skeet is being shot in every state in the Union and in Canadian provinces, including many foreign countries. It is estimated that 40 per cent of all clay targets used in 1936 were shot at skeet. Last year there were 75,000,000 clay targets used at trapshooting and skeet in this country.

The popularity of skeet shooting is greatly due to its similarity to field shooting. In skeet shooting, when in position to shoot, the shooter stands in field position—that is, with the gun at his side. In going around the skeet field, the shooter away from him, and toward him and every possible angle up to a complete right angle. Skeet shooting will teach the shooter to handle his gun carefully, quickly and accurately and will vastly improve his field shooting ability.

The average hunter goes shooting three to four times a year. He spends money and shells, shotgun and other equipment. He will waste a great many shots because of his inability to hit the birds. Perhaps he only has a few chances and "blows" these. If this hunter were to practice a few rounds of skeet before the hunting season, it would improve his shooting to a great extent, especially the new shooter and it won't hurt the crack shot to have a few rounds.

Nearly every fish and game club, summer resort, and other place of amusement is interested in field shooting. A trap, either skeet or trapshooting is inexpensive and it affords a great amount of sport and exercise. If you are interested in forming a gun club, write Jimmy Robinson, care of this paper, or the North American Sportsman's Club, Wrigley Building, Chicago, Illinois.

NOTE TO READERS: This department will gladly answer any questions you may have to ask about hunting, fishing, trapping, etc. Write to North American Sportsman's Club, Wrigley Building, Chicago, Ill., or direct to this newspaper.

Recommend Two Slight Changes in Football Rules for 1938

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Football coaches in convention turned today to motion picture which have played an increasingly important part in the gridiron sport.

Use of the camera for improving a team's play was up for discussion by a half dozen top-ranking coaches, who advocate it as an essential for correcting faults of individual players.

The coaches yesterday agreed that prevailing rules were pretty much all right with exception of two slight changes which Lou Little of Columbia university, chairman of the rules committee, said would help the offense. Athletic directors of the smaller institutions meanwhile pondered questions involving gate receipts, football crowds and football dollars.

Count As Down

One of the changes recommended by the rules committee would bring the ball in 15 yards from the sidelines instead of 10 when it goes out of bounds or is downed closer than that yardage to the line. The other would make a forward pass that is ineligible man behind the line of scrimmage count as a down instead of loss of the ball.

Little did not agree with a number of coaches who thought the defense had surpassed the offense. He said the present rules were sound and with the exception of a minor change here and there nothing was needed.

"The past fall," said Little, "saw an extension of unorthodox defenses. This came up just as the hysteria of lateral passing a year ago and will go out the same way."

The report of the rules committee was the first action of the annual convention of the AFCA. Its recommendations will go to the NCAA's football lawmaking body, which goes into session Sunday at Gulfport, Miss., to lay down the rules for 1938.

Fabiani, mat czar of New York and its environs, regards the results as a foregone conclusion if the thing's on the up-and-up.

"Why, it's going to be ludicrous, matching these boys of mine against the former mat champions," said the former mat champion, "I can put a fat after-dinner cigar. 'Half the boxers couldn't spell beer. I can put a full team of college graduates in there if I want to."

"I'll just wait and pick up whatever wrestlers are around. They imagine telling guys like Bronko Nagurski, Jim McMillen, Dean Detton, Gus Sonnenberg or Vincent Lopez how to spell? Every one of them finished some university and Lopez was an accountant before he entered the ring."

Only Stipulation
Only one stipulation Fabiani makes, and that is that the man who gives out the mat is an educated, smart Johnny, himself. He was under the misapprehension for a time that Mushky Jackson would give the word.

"My boys wouldn't stand a chance with Mushky in there," he complained. "What, for instance, if he said 'spell er'? My boys would think it meant one of these English ears, and where would they be?"

Jackson feels that this crusade against the wrestlers is something he owes to boxing, the grand old game that made him what he is. He asked but one question when Walter St. Denis offered him the team captaincy and asked him to choose his men.

"Sure," he said, "what weights?"

Host of Former Alabama Stars to Watch Bowl Tilt

Coach Declares Better Team Will Be Sitting In Stands

BY PAUL ZIMMERMAN
PASADENA, CALIF.—(AP)—All the worrying in Alabama's football camp would be reduced to a minimum, the Tide's coaching staff admits, if Coach Frank Thomas could call from the stands New Year's day a host of Bama Rose Bowl stars of other years to cope with California.

Hank Crisp, athletic director who has been with the invaders in a coaching capacity on each of the four previous trips, expressed the thought in no uncertain terms as a lithe young man sauntered into the hotel lobby.

Played Against Stanford
He was, of course, Dixie Howell, who gave Stanford the galloping jitters with his pitches three years ago Jan. 1.

"Wouldn't it be swell," said Dixie to a rugged chap named Riley Smith who did some handsome blocking for Howell that afternoon, "if we could get in there again Saturday?"

"Would it?" exclaimed Crisp, who prefers to let Coach Thomas speak for himself. "Boy, I'll tell the world."

He shook his head sadly. Howell and Smith, fresh from the pro wars where they performed with the champion Washington Redskins, were engulfed in a crowd of admirers.

Better Team in Stands
That set Hank to talking. "With no reelection on the team that's bound to make a fine showing Saturday," said Crisp, "Alabama will have a better team sitting in the stands than on the sidelines."

He named nine bowl performers who will be spectators and admitted a half dozen of them would be "mighty valuable."

He named them off without thought of order as to their ability. Besides Howell and Smith there are Joe Riley, left half, 1935; John Mack Brown, halfback, 1926; Paul Bryant, end, 1935; Kay Francis, center, 1935; Babe Pearce, guard, 1926; Sonny McGahey, tackle, 1931; Billie Brown, halfback, 1931.

Olen Chief Speaker
At Rotary Meeting
Clintonville—Walter A. Olen, president and general manager of the Four Wheel Drive Auto company, was the after dinner speaker at the Rotary club's weekly meeting Monday at Hotel Marion. In his talk, M. Olen emphasized the importance of world peace. Inasmuch as one nation is dependent upon another for certain products, it is vital that friendly relations are maintained, he declared.

Miss Ruth Krubsack suffered a fractured leg when she fell on the icy sidewalk near the A. and P. store late Monday afternoon. The bone is broken near the ankle and she is confined at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Krubsack.

A son was born Monday afternoon to Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Below at their home on Pauline street in this city.

James and Robert Martin left Tuesday for Milwaukee after spending a week's vacation at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Martin. Both boys are students at Milwaukee State Teachers' college. Bob is a member of the college basketball team and was asked to return for practice before the opening of classes.

Thompson rolled a 237 game and Schwertel a 201 and a 584 series at Washington outbowed Santa Clara two out of three and hung up the best team scores, 892 for game and 2737 for series. For the Santa Clara team, M. Herner shot two games of 205 and a 609 series.

Gleisner wrote down games of 200 and 213, finishing with a 575 series, and Tillman games of 201 and 200 as Oregon won two from Utah. A 517 series rolled by J. Engel was the best on the Utah sheet.

Rapping a 571 series, J. Feavel led Stanford in a 2-game win over Montana, headed by Richmond who wound up with a 544 series.

Marston bowled a 228 game and 571 series as California took two from St. Mary's, led by Henderson who knocked a 212 on one game and ended with a 539 series.

"Whizzer" White, all-American halfback from Colorado, was awarded a trophy as the nation's "best player of 1937" by Norman Sper of Los Angeles, in a ceremony at Fort Worth, Tex. Colorado will meet Rice in the "Cotton Bowl" game at Dallas New Year's day.

BASKETBALL By CHARLES R. (CHICK) DAVIES Duquesne University Coach

FOUL LINE PLAYS TEST TEAM'S PASSING ABILITY
Coach Davies Offers Fast Set Plays Under Own and Opponent's Basket

LAST season Duquesne's Captain Walt Miller, 6 foot 3 inch forward and Ed Kweiller, 6 foot 7 inch center stationed under the hoop to retrieve missed foul shots. As a rule either one of these two boys would get the ball in the event it was not caged. Miller scored repeatedly by tapping teammates' missed fouls back through the cords. Prior to Miller and Kweiller we had McDougal and Brenner, giants who also knew how to get that ball after a missed foul. With these tall boys insuring the ball for Duquesne it was not necessary to resort to set foul line plays very often.

Since a missed foul shot, however, offers one of the few occasions for a set play, I have the boys drilled in the following maneuvers when we are shooting the foul.

Illustration, we assume O-3 misses his foul throw. The ball rolls off the hoop into the minging hands of defensive men 1 and 2 and offensive men 1 and 2. O-2 finally snares the ball but is too closely guarded for a lay-up or rebound shot so that he passes out to O-3 who has a set shot. If D-4 is alert and fast enough he rushes up, hand stretched upward, to stop or deflect O-3's set shot. O-3 then passes back to O-5 who takes a set shot. Naturally D-3, D-4 and D-5 rush in to prevent O-5 from shooting. In this event O-4 blocks D-3 momentarily. O-3 does the same to either D-4 or D-5, depending upon which one of the two defensive players is nearer to the shooter. O-5 should have a good set shot as he is shooting directly for the basket.

Capturing Missed Foul
When an opponent attempts to shoot a foul and misses, the success of Duquesne's five is dependent upon getting men toward its offensive basket before the defense starts moving. The play looks something like this:

O-3 is shooting the foul for our team. O-2 is directly under the hoop. O-1 is one man down from the basket on the opposite side of the court from O-2 and ready to retrieve the ball in the event O-3 misses his shot. For the sake of illustration, we assume O-3 misses his shot.

Here is a more detailed description of the illustration. Opponents, No. 1 shoots the foul and misses. The ball is retrieved by Duquesne's No. 2 who with D-3 and D-4 constitutes the strong side. D-2 passes to D-4 who starts dribbling down the floor with several possibilities for a basket confronting him. (The purpose of this formation is to get a three-two or two-one situation. That is, getting three or two offensive players down the floor against one defensive man.) D-3 starts down the floor before D-4 commences dribbling and is ready to block O-5 out of the play. At the same time D-5 is cutting down the floor to complete the three-one situation. He is open for a lay-up or pass under the basket for a lay-up shot. This situation is safer than risking a chance of losing the ball by dribbling all the way in.

In this three-one situation players D-3 and D-5 may also criss-cross to confuse O-5. In that event the formation starts off in the same manner as the play illustrated, but instead of D-3 going under the lay-up shot D-5 picks off O-3 for D-3 as he passes behind and around D-5 to receive the long pass from D-4.

These last two plays are known as fast breaks, so remember success is contingent upon the ability of the offense to break away from the defense.

COOL SWEAT CRIPPLES MOTOR PERFORMANCE

But don't let it WORRY YOU. Get this Fast-Starting, LUBRICATING GASOLINE

RUST and corrosion are real winter menaces. They attack unprotected upper motor parts. They cause loss of power; they lower your "mileage"; they slow up starting. But you can protect your motor simply and easily this winter....

Switch to Tydol, the lubricating gasoline. Every gallon contains a special top-cylinder oil that constantly lubricates and protects valves, pistons and upper-cylinders. The "Cold Sweat", the water that every motor creates, is foiled in its rusty, corrosive work by a waterproof film of oil. Your motor deserves this extra Tydol service.

• The next cold morning you start your motor, hot vapors will strike cold metal. Condensation will take place. You will see clouds of steam and drops of water pour out of the exhaust. That's "Cold Sweat"! You only see it... but your motor feels it. You can measure in a drinking glass the water that accumulates from "Cold Sweat" outside your motor. But inside your motor, this water, unless checked, rusts and corrodes valves and other vital parts.

War Materials Shares Leaders In Upward Trend

Profit-Selling Cuts Down Extreme Advances in Final Hour

Compiled by the Associated Press

Net change — War materials stocks again furnished most of the buying ammunition for today's stock market. With indications an army and navy expansion program will be inaugurated in the coming year, selected stocks, aircraft and specialties which may benefit by defense spending pushed up as much as 2 or more points at the best. Dealings were slow throughout, however, and profit realizing reduced extreme advances in the closing hour. The 5-hour turnover approximated 900,000 shares. In front of the greater part of the time, the market was led by Bethlehem, Inland Steel, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, American Can, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Western Union, American Telephone, American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, Howe Sound, Minneapolis-Honeywell, Woolworth, Atlas Powder, Reynolds Tobacco, B. J. Union Carbide, Eastman Kodak and Climax Molybdenum. Most utilities, rails and motors struggled somewhat unsuccessfully to regain climbing vigor. Cash selling was a feature of the session, yesterday being the last session on which sales could be made on the ordinary 2-day delivery basis.

Buyers Concentrate on Rail Issues at New York

New York — Buying activities in the bond market today concentrated on the rail group, producing many gains ranging from fractions to around 2 points. United States governments slid back a little on restricted volume. Early in the final hour losses ranged from 1-3/4 to 7-3/4 of a point. Leaders of the group in the early hours included Erie 5s, Rock Island General 4s, New York Central 5s, M-K-T 5s, Union Pacific 3 1/2s and Nickel Plate 4 1/2s. Studebaker 6s and Western Union 5s were among the gainers in the industrial and utility divisions. Advances of 3 points or more in Japanese 6 1/2s and Abitibi Power and Light 5 1/2s were the outstanding movements in the foreign sector.

New York Curb Stocks Gain in Brisk Trade

New York — A sharp advance in metal, aircraft and chemical shares stimulated buying interest in the curb market today. Utilities and oils moved along with the leaders for fractional gains in late trading. Newmont rose about 2 and Lake Shore Mines improved around a point. Pan American Airways climbed around 1 1/2. Up fractions to a point or more were Niagara Hudson Power, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Electric Bond and Share, Creole Petroleum, American Gas and Electric and American Cyanamid "B."

Prices of Wheat Are Fairly Steady During Late Trade

Report Moderate Export Business in United States Grain

Chicago — In a light trade, Chicago wheat prices swung indecisively today within a range of about a cent a bushel. A steady tone prevailed in wheat during late dealings following reports of fair export business in United States wheat. Approximately 350,000 bushels of domestic hard winter wheat was estimated to have been taken today for shipment to European continental countries with 250,000 bushels of Canadian wheat bought for Great Britain. Export purchases of United States corn were placed at 400,000 to 500,000 bushels. At the close, Chicago wheat futures were unchanged to 1 off compared with yesterday's finish, May 1901, July 841-1, corn 1-1 advanced May 81-1, July 61 and oats unchanged.

Board Will Hear Proposal for Vote At Canning Plant

Evidence to be Offered by Petitioners, Union, Plant Officials

New London — A hearing on the petition of non-union employees of the Hamilton and Sons Canning company for certification of a representation of employees will be conducted by the state labor relations board at the city hall here at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon, according to a communication received by all interested parties yesterday from the secretary of the board.

An application for an election among employees to determine the bargaining agency at the strike-bound plant was filed last week with the support of more than 100 employees. Petitioners' representatives named in the announcement of the hearing are Ervin Schimke, Ed Stern, Jr., Tom Johnson and Walter Miller.

Evidence on the advisability of the hearing will be received from the petitioners, the Cannery Factory local 1107 which is conducting the strike which has kept the sauerkraut plant closed since Nov. 23, and officials and management of the Hamilton and Sons Canning company.

It is expected a controversy will arise over the payment to be made to determine the employees who are eligible to vote in the election. More than 200 were on the payrolls of Nov. 20, a week prior to the strike, while only about 70 were employed on the day the strike was called. At that time the union local claimed a membership of 62.

Backlog for U. S. in Event of War Seen in Vast National Resources

(Editor's note: This is the last of three articles analyzing America's defenses.)

BY ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

Washington — (AP) — The United States has a third-line war defense which is by far the most formidable in the world—national resources.

This country possesses nearly one-half of the world's total supply of essential raw materials, raises practically all of the food-stuffs it requires and boasts a virtually unlimited manufacturing plant capacity.

It has an abundance of such important materials for military requirements as iron and steel, lead and copper, oil and cotton. Nickel needed for toughening steel could be obtained from friendly Canada, world's greatest source of supply.

The United States is tops in number of manufacturing plants, in transportation facilities, in number of inventors, technicians and skilled workers. In the event of war the production of fighting planes, of tanks, guns, high explosives and other weapons and munitions could be almost unlimited.

War Experience Cited

War department plans looking to a swift mobilization of resources at any outbreak of hostilities provide for rapid stepping up of the output of military aircraft. These plans include estimates of the speed with which planes could be built and put into service but the figures as well as other mobilization details are secret.

Aviation observers, however, cite the vast American production of planes during the World war when aviation was in its infancy as indicating that this country could produce as many planes as it would need.

For soldiers this country can tap a virtually inexhaustible reservoir of manpower. When we entered the World war there were 200,000 men in the American army, one-third of them national guardsmen. Nineteen months later the United States had an army of 4,000,000 men, some 2,000,000 had been transported 3,000 miles across submarine-infested seas and 1,390,000 had fought in France.

Since the World war, military experts and key men in industry and transportation have been working on a secret, master defense plan for orderly mobilization of troops, materials, industrial plants, capital and labor.

It provides for the setting up of governmental boards to control industries, to coordinate railway, highway and airway services, and the drafting of industrial and technical experts into government service.

For the job of harnessing industrial power to military and civilian needs, a war resources administration would be created along the lines of the 1917-1918 war industries board but with broader powers and jurisdiction.

Some Products Needed
The President would be empowered to fix prices of commodities particularly food and fuel and to commandeer manufacturing plants and other establishments under certain conditions.

One of the first moves would be to divert labor and raw materials from the production of non-essential items to the production of those necessary to defense.

We are not completely self-sufficient in military requirements, according to the experts. Rubber would be one of our largest import needs although we could reclaim a large quantity in civilian use for military purposes.

The nation is dependent on outside sources for manganese, iodine and tungsten. A coffee famine might hit soldiers as well as civilians. An expanded sugar beet acreage, however, would go far in providing the nation with a normal supply of sweets.
